For love is ever the beginning of knowledge, as fire is of light

RICHARD T. HARGREAVES

SOME men are endowed with qualities of heart and mind that make them loved and honored by all who know them. In the number of such men stands Richard T. Hargreaves, who has been for seven and one-half years principal of our school.

He has ever striven to lead us along the paths of high attainment. It is from him that we have received those inspiring words which have aroused in us the deepest of ambition and an increasing desire to experience better things, to realize more clearly the noble thoughts which should constitute a worthy mind.

We are grateful to Mr. Hargreaves for his guidance toward our goal of achievement. His influence is one that will live long in the hearts and lives of those who pass through Central.

Miss Genevieve S. McDill

MISS GENEVIEVE S. McDILL

Miss Genevieve S. McDill is a woman eminently fitted by nature and training to fill her position as Dean of Students.

Through her charming personality which forms a pleasing center from which radiates a spirit of friendliness, Miss McDill has won her way into the hearts of the entire student body. Her kindly interest in every student has helped to further a spirit of friendliness and cooperation. Her ready understanding of individual problems, her willingness at all times to "hear both sides of the story" are attributes which have made their impress upon the lives of the students at Central.

In Miss McDill one feels that one has a sincere friend.

MRS. JOAN D. O'BRIEN

Mrs. Joan D. O'Brien will this year complete her eighth year as home visitor for Central. Through her close contact with the homes of students, Mrs. O'Brien, probably more than any other member of the faculty, has come to know the parents of students personally and to understand their individual problems.

In her capacity as visitor, Mrs. O'Brien is compelled, upon the absence of a student from school, to make a thorough investigation of the cause. Whenever she finds that financial or other aid is needed, it is her privilege to provide some means whereby this aid can be given. This she is able to do through her association with several charitable institutions and agencies.

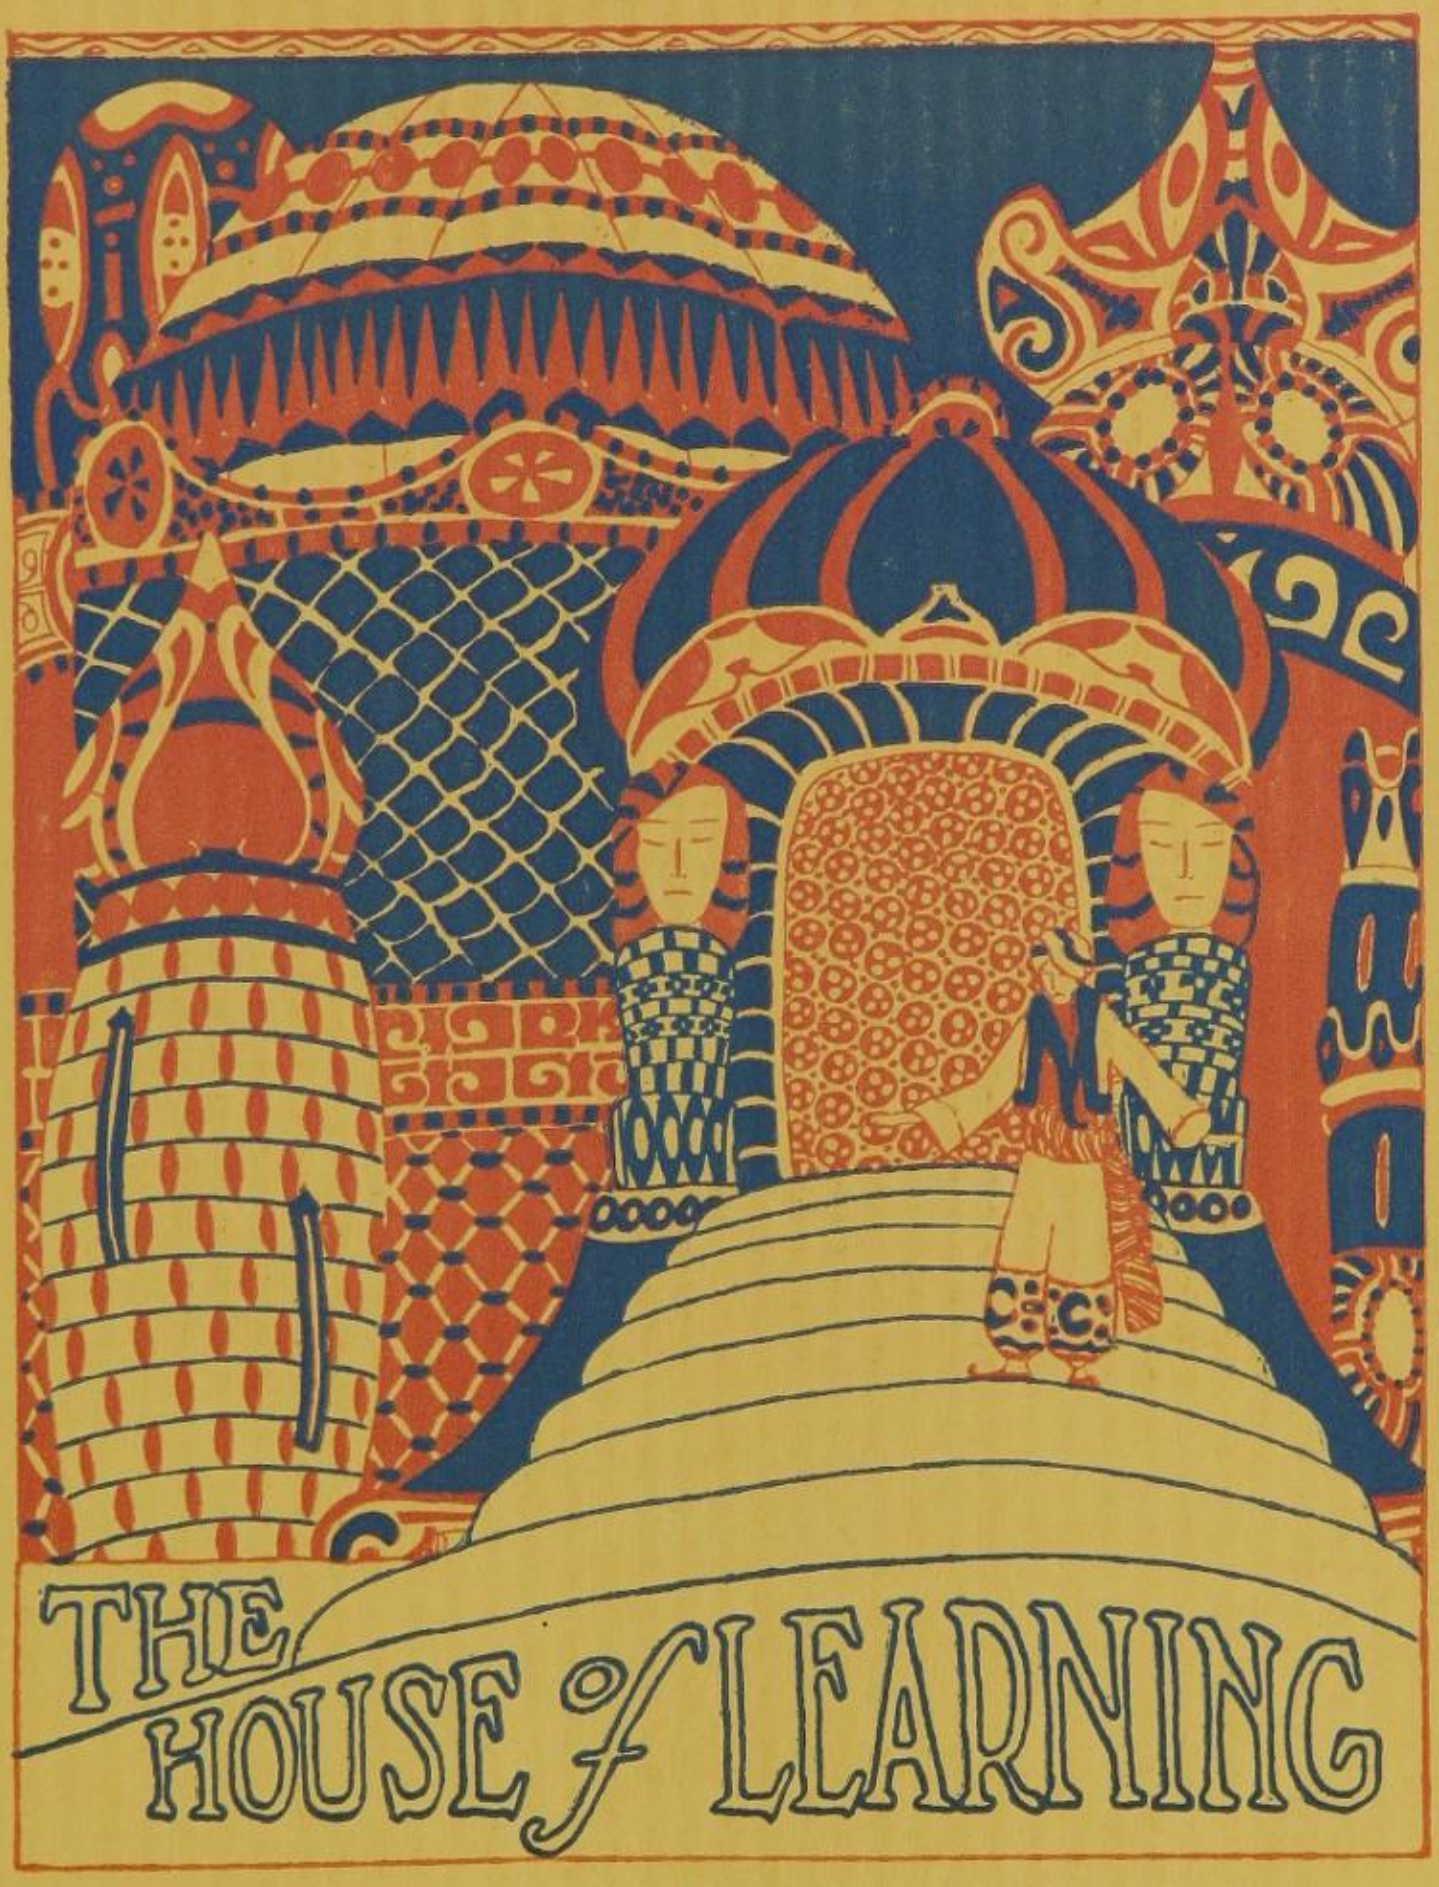
CALVIN W. JARVIS

FOR five years Calvin W. Jarvis, our assistant principal, has been hard at work straightening and making smoother the paths of those who come to Central.

He is one to whom students, mothers, and fathers come at all times, and one in whom they find a listener who is sympathetic and, above all, reasonable.

Mr. Jarvis has justly won the deep respect and honest admiration of all who know him.

It is with deep regret that we realize this friend is to leave us. With best wishes for his future success, all his friends express these feelings as one.



THE HOUSE of LEARNING

TO THE GRADUATING CLASSES

THESE are for you the culminating hours of four happy years, and as I witness on every hand the preparations for your departure from these the scenes of our mutual striving, I am filled with mingled feelings of rejoicing and regret. Our days here have been filled with so much that is finest and richest in friendship, that, happy as I am over your successes and graduation, I find myself conscious of a sense of loss as I sign your diplomas and thereby mark the end of our common adventure.

The only thing I know with certainty about you as individuals is that each of you appears but once in history. "Each is irreplaceable"; each has a disposition to grow and each craves social recognition. No man knows what will be the nature of the social order of tomorrow; it seems safe to assume, however, that you will meet problems of selfishness on the one hand and of cooperation on the other; that you will be called upon to make moral decisions and to solve problems that will require training, courage, and intelligence.

Central High School has sought to prepare you to meet the unexpected; to train you in methods rather than in rules; to aid you in mastering the social techniques; to assist you in the task of building minds tolerant, inquiring, fearlessly honest, capable of thinking, and creative. Whatever measure of success may attach to this endeavor, I am confident, that because of your association with this school, you will become, as individuals, more productive of the things man needs as a social and spiritual being.

Faithfully yours,

RICHARD T. HARGREAVES.

FELLOW CLASSMATES:

WHEN this letter is printed in the Centralian, our class will be scattered through the many walks of life, some having gone into business or other occupations, others continuing their studies in College or University. In whatever circumstances, however, looking back on our life at Central, we are already realizing the value of our High School Course.

As a class we have reason to be proud of our record, for we not only took a commendable part in all school activities, but also had the high honor of having attained the highest scholarship of any class graduated from Central.

Although we are not now together in a body, we are still bound together in the spirit of loyalty to each other and to our school, in appreciative memory of the worth of our years spent there, the patient efforts of our teachers in our behalf, and the friendships we have made.

Let us keep this loyalty to Central ever in our hearts and be ready to show by our interest and our lives that we are worthy alumni of Central High School.

Sincerely,

Your president,

NORTON M. CROSS, JR.

JANUARY CLASS PROPHECY

A DIMLY lighted room, hung with black velvet; a jewel-studded ebony table, on which reposes a crystal globe—this is the setting in which the veil of the future is to be torn asunder so that the class of January, 1926, through my humble eyes, will learn what the coming years enfold. As I gaze into the crystal, its clear transparency becomes opaque, and I discern strange figures and unknown buildings.

The tiny scene represents a bustling American city, Norcross. A huge car glides by, and in it reclines Henry Mich, owner of a chain of up-to-the-minute clothing stores, with Allan Pettit as his chauffeur. While his car is halted in traffic for a moment by officer Claude Hendrickson, he exchanges a greeting with Doctor Robert Bergquist, who is on his way to tend the sprained ankle of Muriel DuLac, a renowned interpretive dancer.

As the traffic clears, I catch a glimpse of Katherine Hooker and Harold Canoyer hurrying along thinking only of their editorial duties, for they are co-editors of a great newspaper in the employ of which are Eugene Gray, typesetter; Rosemary Greenwood, copy reader; and Norman Amland, a reporter. Aleda Cook and George McInerny, rival lawyers, pass by, vigorously arguing the points of the recent McNurlen bigamy case.

The scene changes, and I see the fields and brooks of the country addition, Hudson Heights. Luverne Dale's architectural masterpiece, the magnificent summer home of Mildred Syverson, famous portrait painter, is visible. The portraits on which rest her fame are those of Sid Pettibone, the most entertaining and popular comedienne on the stage and Gertrude Markle, a social leader and wife of a man of fabulous wealth. As I admire the house, a group of people come out on the broad veranda. I recognize the face of Katherine Duffy, brilliant correspondent for several world news agencies. She is asking Georgette Murphy, owner of an exclusive modiste shop, what trend the fall fashions will take. Everett McGill listens eagerly, for he is a theatrical magnet famous for the costuming of his Revues. Out on the tennis courts four of his stars, Helen Rhame, Dorothy McCune, Jo Frudenfeld, and Raymond Carlson, are playing a close match. From the near-by sea the white gleam of an ocean liner attracts my eye. Reclining luxuriously in their deck chairs are Francena Cunnington, widely known botanist, and her secretary, Eva Wallin. Three successful brokers, Frank Rhame, Stanley Lundgren, and Harold Benjamin, come strolling along the decks with their wives, nee Magdalena Farley, Arlene Wyvell, and Betty Stoessel.

My eyes stray about and I recognize Bertha Warner, Marjorie Hearn, and Phoebe Crowe; the first, a writer of charming short stories; the second, an organizer for the W. C. T. U.; and the last a prominent welfare worker. They are engrossed in a discussion of Don Murphy's remarkable inventions when they are interrupted by a cheery greeting. It comes from Mary Mallory, a most attractive young widow, escorted by Richard Crist and Carleton Kirk, the former an artist on the shoe-horn and ear-drum and the latter equally proficient on the ham-bone. The gay trio on their way to the salon where Ray McDonald is to entertain the voyagers with acrobatics, are joined by Virginia Champlin, whose destination is France, where she intends to study architecture.

The next vision reveals to me a huge fifty-passenger dirigible, the property of the oil magnate, Eric Pollard. A gay party is in full swing aboard the liner of the air. The guests include Frank McElwain, Richard Walling, Dick Smith, and Robert Woodward, each possessed of a goodly fortune acquired by the running of bucket shops. Another well known personage is Andrew Overby, whose boyish grin has made him famous on the silver sheet. There is Mardelle Turner, a dashing divorcee, and talking to her, Charles Hearn, a canny business man, possessed of unreckoned worldly wealth. Glenn Hamilton is also to be seen voluble in explaining his next advertising campaign for the automobile manufacturers, Grimstad, Berne, and Mathes. Mary Crowe, poster artist, and Charlotte Croon, author of "Plastic Potpourri," constitute his attentive audience. Avis Bellaire just returned from a botanical expedition up the Amazon, is recounting her discoveries to Beatrice Edwards, dean of a splendid women's college, Starkey Seminary. Lillian Anderson, owner of a series of quaint tea rooms, is discussing with Helen Corey, a pretty young matron, the most appropriate color scheme to be used by Kathryn Mealey in the redecoration of her shops. Margaret Nevius, Paris envoy and buyer of gowns for Helen Snyder's shop and Florence Willson, likewise a European buyer of hats, are talking of new departures in feminine apparel.

In contrast to this feministic group is the burly football coach, James McHugh, who is heatedly discussing new plays with George Main, star Haleton fullback.

I strive to see more, but the entrancing scene loses its distinctness and vanishes slowly from my sight, leaving me to exult over the remarkable successful lives of the members of the never to be forgotten class of January, 1926.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

THE National Honor Society, organized in 1921, has as its objective the ideal to promote Character, Service, Leadership, and Scholarship among high school students throughout the country.

Fifteen per cent of the students of each graduating class may join this society, provided that they rank, scholastically, in the upper fifth of the class. Those whose averages are 2.3 or over, automatically become members, while the others are elected through a vote of the entire faculty. Each student admitted must have completed at least six semesters' work and of these six semesters two must have been at one school.

Thirty-three members of the January class were admitted into the society, and this class has the highest scholastic record ever held by a class at Central High School.

DEAR CLASSMATES:

ALL too soon we have come to the conclusion of our high school career and to the beginning of a new career. To some it will mean entrance into the business world; to others higher education, but no matter which we choose there are the firm principles and high ideals which we have gained at Central to guide us.

The past four years have been four of the most important in our lives. We have gained experiences that will enable us to meet our problems more efficiently in the future; we have gained a broadened understanding of what life will demand, and more than this, to our great happiness, we have made everlasting friendships.

To those who have made possible our schooling, our parents and the faculty of Central, we owe a great debt of gratitude, which we can pay only by fulfilling their highest expectations of us.

Sincerely,

Your President,

DONALD MARTIN.

JUNE CLASS NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

C. Character. S. Scholarship. L. Leadership. S. Service.

THESE four initials are those which are engraved on the pin of the National Honor Society of which Central High School is the seventh chapter. All members of the graduating class having averages of 2.3 or over, automatically join the society. Those with averages over 2.0 are eligible to be elected to it by a vote of the teachers. This year thirty-five students of the June graduating class automatically became members of the society, and twelve were elected by the faculty.

The semi-annual banquet given for the members took place Thursday, April 15, in the House-Keeping Suite, which was glorious with red and blue crepe paper and flowers. After dinner, Richard T. Hargreaves, the toastmaster, introduced four members who spoke on Character, Scholarship, Leadership, Service, respectively. The following officers for this year were elected: John Moorhead, president; Caroline Woodhull, vice-president; and Joyce Porter, secretary and treasurer.

JUNE CLASS PROPHECY

Good Morrow, dear classmates:

WILL you take the time to read a short letter in very poor rhyme? In nineteen hundred and fifty-eight, I took a trip through the Gopher state. I made Duluth my starting place and searched for a familiar face. While I was strolling near the lake, found mist too heavy for comfort's sake, but Olie and Judd had a store nearby for wet weather goods—my old friend Si was clerk in charge and sold me first a folding umbrella to fit my purse. Then he related to me some tales about Don Martin, it seems he sails on a training ship and instructs just mobs and says he likes it gobs and gobs. He directed me then to the five and dime, for which I made a straight bee line to see O. Walker with talk that tickles demonstrate Davies' Peerless Pickles. A circus sign on a fence nearby with gleaming colors then caught my eye. So to the tents I made my way to see the clever clowns at play. The very first made me cry out—'twas Maurice Hebner without doubt. Performed great feats on the high trapeze—I held my breath for fear he'd sneeze. But Elinor Thompson was even gamer, for she came in as a lion tamer. As I left Duluth and began to roam, I saw "Retired Porters' Home," a rambling house set on a hill, managed, I learned, by Joyce and "Bill." I stopped at Brainerd and while there met a friend I'd recognize anywhere. Here, Paul Elder, genealogist, sees to locating twigs on all family trees. We sat and talked till almost dark, when a newsboy hurried across the park shouting, "Great news, Fawcett explores, brings back word that the Penguin snores. Heimberger, Hunter, and Alaskan guide, help him to capture a Nearseal hide." As 'twas Saturday night, Paul made me stay to hear Dick Grisdale preach next day. His subject made me weak in the knees—"Pseudographic Apocalypses." He spoke real well, "durned" if he didn't. Only slept once for 'bout a minute. After farewells I left the crowd and hit the road for good St. Cloud, a point near home. Arrived there when my attention was drawn by a group of men, who stood gazing up at a towering wall. I looked, then shuddered for fear he'd fall. There hung "Gene" Rogers, the human fly, midway between the earth and sky. The latter looked gloomy as if 'twould rain, so I decided to hop a train. I picked up a book by Professor McKee, called "Various Bluffs on the Mississippi." I bought me a journal for each night and morn. I always read Sophie's advice to the Lovelorn. "Bill" Davidson writes it got in trouble I heard, advising John Moorhead and some other bird to kidnap some actress, can't tell you her name—'twas in Noah's Ark Follies that she won her fame. But Bill has a lawyer to handle the case. Helen Leitz could free anyone from a tight place. She helped Dave Schultz his point to carry in that famous suit against his mortuary. As I got off on the Carboard side, a prince then boarded with his bride. I asked a man who stood next to me, who this illustrious couple could possibly be. And when the gentleman turned my way I found 'twas a friend of yesterday, Jack Chambers, reporter on the Daily Dispatch acclaimed it a truly marvelous match. The bride was none other than Alfreda Hoff. There was a great crowd to see them off. Off at one side was a queer old dame, all humped up o'er a twisted cane. She hobbled about from place to place, peering eagerly in everyone's face, as she approached us she gave a shout and straightened up, and her hand went out. "For the lova Mike," she loudly cried, "What brought you down to see the bride?" 'Twas Caroline Woodhull, who whispered low: "You mustn't let on who I am, you know. Her jewels were stolen and I'm on the track. Betcha a nickel I get them back." "The detective job is just her line. I understand she's doing fine." With that Jack Chambers said goodbye. I caught a plane and home did fly. Arrived at home, and read my mail, a list of this should end my tale. Kathleen has joined a mission band, and writes from India's coral strand. A Serkland circular served to tell, how "Serkland Center" homes would sell. And so, so long, until that date when we shall learn the other's fate.

THE "A" SENIOR ADVISERS

AMONG the faculty there is a certain group that stands out in the hearts of the senior class. This group, advisers to the "A" senior classes, through its friendliness, kindness, sympathy, and helpfulness, has won its place in the ranks of those most beloved and admired in Central. Those who leave Central have fresh in their minds the joyousness and happiness of the best years of their lives. Time, an unbending master, soon dims the memory; but the advisers will never die in the minds and hearts of those with whom they have come in contact. Theirs is an influence whose impetus will carry it undimmed through the years that stretch far into the unfathomed future.

SCHOOL DEBATE

CENTRAL'S Forensic activities were represented by the two school debate teams, who argued the question: "Resolved, that the proposed Child Labor Amendment be adopted."

Tryouts were held before Christmas vacation, and the six winners worked from then until March 11-12, the days of the third annual Tri-State debate with Sioux Falls, S. D., and Fargo, N. D. The Red and Blue affirmative squad, composed of Helen Thorvilson, Gaile Elliott, and Lillian Gilliland, defended Central against Sioux Falls, and the negative team, composed of John Salt, Hugh Morrison, and Gordon Bennett, travelled to Fargo. In two close word battles Central's teams lost both debates.

Several preliminary debates were held previous to the Tri-State meeting. Dual debates were held with Stillwater and North High School. In addition to these, the affirmative team met with Minnesota College and South High School. Central, with its affirmative team, won from North High School's negative, but lost the other debates.

During the spring semester, a class in debating was formed with Charles T. Addington, debate coach, as teacher. The fifth period of each day was given over to the subject. The class was composed of the six members of the team and others who were interested in debating. Each member of the class received a full credit for his work.

1926 CENTRALIAN STAFF

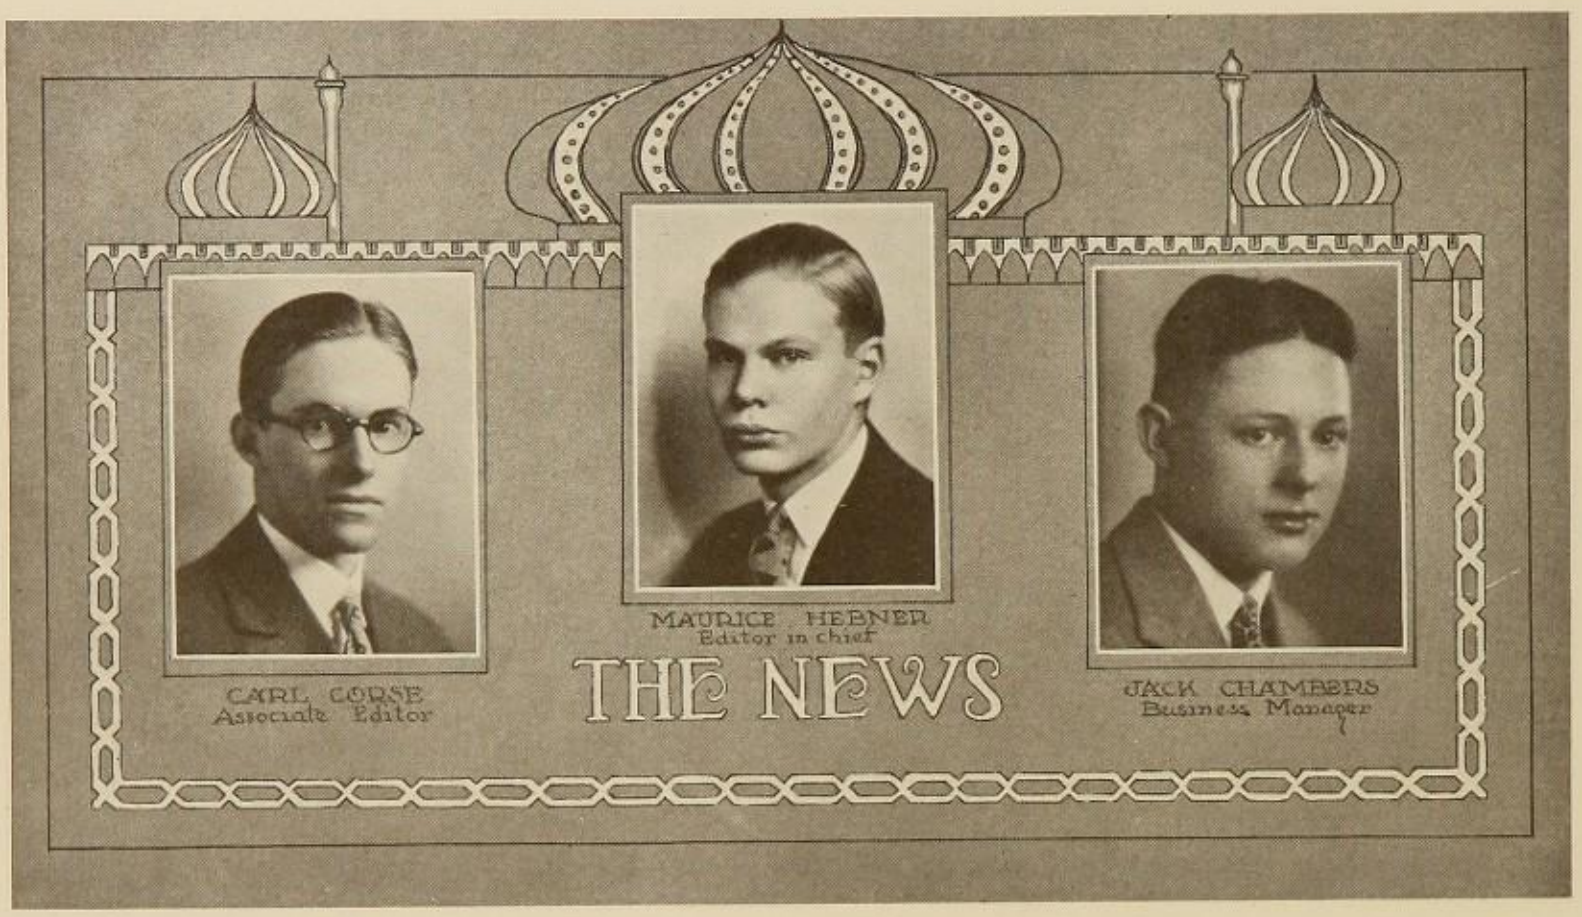
SEVERAL years ago there was published at Central an annual called the "Senior." That publication constituted the yearbook of the school. Some years later the name was changed to the "Centralian," a name familiar to every student at Central today. Each succeeding year has marked a corresponding improvement in the book until today it is recognized as one of the best in the state.

While the purpose of the Centralian is essentially to portray the life and traditions of Central, this year's staff has endeavored to carry out its purpose in as realistic and colorful a manner as possible and to create a book that Central and Central's friends may rightly be proud to claim as their own.

The staff was announced late in November and from that time the book rapidly assumed very pleasing characteristics. A theme that would represent the idea of trial and work and yet maintain a definite goal was adopted. The course of life through the four years of high school was likened to the trials and tribulation of a caravan of the orient wending its way across the burning sands towards some far distant shrine.

With the issuance of the Centralian the staff wishes to extend its heartfelt thanks to its faculty advisers, Edwin M. Barton, Walter A. Nordby, and Miss Ella M. Witter. It is largely due to their untiring efforts that the Centralian has been placed in your hands on this Centralian day.



NEWS STAFF

PLACING higher than any other four-page weekly high school paper in the Central Interscholastic Press Association contest, the News has enjoyed one of its most successful years. The News was awarded a tie for second place in this nation-wide contest. The first place winner is an eight-page paper. The paper with which the News tied is a bi-weekly.

This high position in the national contest followed the sweeping victory in the state contest in the fall. Competing against the paper which won the C. I. P. A. contest last year and the paper which later won the Columbia Scholastic Press Association contest, the News won first in its class and took three out of five special prizes, those for the best front page and sport page make-ups and the best news-story.

While the year 1925-1926 was a successful one, it was one of personnel losses. The editor-in-chief was lost to the staff when he left town the first week of school. The advertising manager was lost when he was made business manager of the Centralian. The news editor was graduated in January. Despite the small size of the staff, however, the News has kept a high standard of journalism.

The policy of the News, that of conservatism, has placed it on a plane of dignity that a school publication seldom reaches.

On behalf of the editor and staff sincere thanks are extended to John E. Mulligan, the faculty adviser, for his kindly help and worthwhile advice. He has never spared himself nor his efforts in endeavoring to make the News the successful paper that it is.

With its fourth straight All-American rating won, the staff feels that the year 1925-1926 has been attended by progress.

THE QUEST

THE Quest has honestly won its place in the hearts of the Central students. It is a literary magazine founded in the spring of 1923. The name was suggested by Principal R. T. Hargreaves and is well fitted to the spirit of the magazine. The Quest endeavors to publish the best in literary self expression of the students. Since the first publication each successive staff has endeavored to uphold the standards set by the founders and possibly to better the magazine.

Each semester the number of manuscripts contributed to the Quest increases. These contributions are reviewed by student reviewers and the faculty advisory board. The members of this board are: Miss Abigail O'Leary, chairman; Mrs. Luella B. Cook; Mrs. Lucile Leonard, who replaced Miss Margaret Siddall the last semester; Miss Witter; and Mr. Nordby.

The art work under the supervision of Miss Ella Witter, art director, has merited very favorable comment.

The Quest was entered in two contests this year. The Minnesota State Interscholastic Press Association held at the state University and a contest of Secondary School publication, at Columbia University. The Quest was awarded first place in both of these contests.

"DOROTHY"

THIS year the Glee Club gave "Dorothy" for its annual production and obtained very pleasing results. The opera was given on Thursday and Friday nights, November nineteenth and twentieth, in the school auditorium.

The plot of "Dorothy" centers around two rings. These rings are used by the two principal ladies on their two unsuspecting lovers as a test of their love, and a rather tangled affair results.

Gladys Nelson charmingly handled the title role. Lydia Hawthorne, Dorothy Bantam's temperamental chum, was given wonderful support by Margaret Turner. The two roles that seemed most difficult, namely Geoffrey Wilder and Harry Sherwood, were played surprisingly well by Wayne I. Fish and Reuben Snesrud respectively. For a second time Ralph Hultgren proved himself an able comedian by filling Lurcher's eighteen-inch shoes. John Burch made an elegant Squire Bantam. Jane Reinhard, as Mrs. Privett, in her flirtations with Lurcher, put herself to ridicule along side of Lady Betty, played by Dorothy Geckler, and her host.

Another pair of Cupid's victims in this opera were the village good-for-nothing, Tom Grass, and the innkeeper's daughter, Phyllis Tuppit, who were shyly characterized by Gordon Wittich and Gwendolyn Alvord respectively. John Tuppit, the innkeeper, accommodated his patrons under George Clingman's proprietorship. Arthur McCracken with his adept face and figure reverently acted the parson. Edward Heimberger and Chester Stebbins were the footmen. The Glee Club choruses are always good and this one proved to be no exception.

Mr. Morse and Miss Boege were, of course, at the helm of the opera and to them go most of the feathers of success.

"ICHABOD CRANE"

THROUGH the kindness and assistance of Stanley R. Avery, composer of the comic opera "Ichabod Crane," the Glee Club was able to present a second opera this year. With an unusual double cast for Brom Van Brunt and Katrina Van Tassel remarkable success was gained by the presentation Thursday and Friday nights, March 25 and 26.

Ichabod Crane is the story of an amusing schoolmaster who sues in vain for the hand of the fair Katrina Van Tassel. Brom Van Brunt, chieftain of the black riders and favored by Katrina, is the rival of Ichabod. Brom and Hendrick Van Tassel playing upon the superstitions of the schoolmaster, drive him from the village leaving Katrina for her lover, Brom.

William Davidson physically, vocally, and farcically filled the title role satisfactorily.

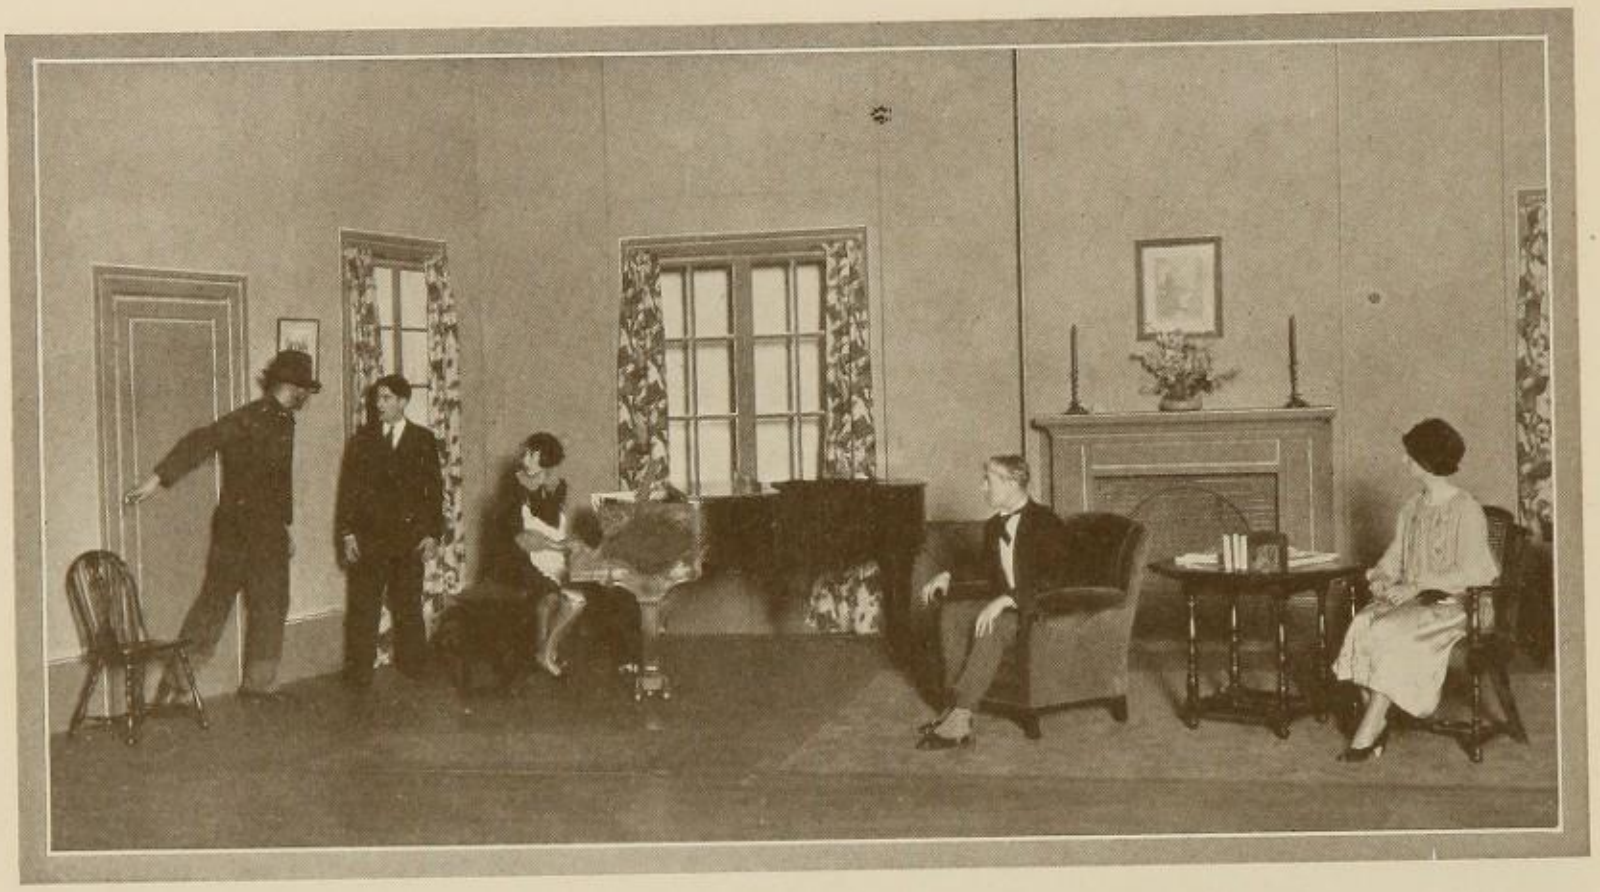
Brom Van Brunt played Thursday and Friday nights by George Clingman and Stanley Lebens respectively, showed intelligent and earnest preparation.

The part of Katrina was pleasingly played by Dorothy Sawyer, Thursday night, and Gertrude Johnson, Friday night.

Wilhelmina, bosom friend of Katrina, was cleverly portrayed by Margaret Turner.

Reuben Snesrud, as Hendrick Van Tassel, Wilhelmina's lover, won laurels with his rich tenor voice.

Vrou and Mynheer Van Tassel, taken by Elizabeth Cleary and Jennings Carlson respectively, were typical Dutch parents. David, the colored servant, was humorously acted by Burton Thom. Little Baltus Van Tassel was played by Kenneth Crouse. The chorus upheld the cast with its clever interpretations.



"TO THE LADIES"

"TO the Ladies," by George Kaufman and Marc Connelly, the January 1926, class play, was presented Thursday and Friday nights, January seventh and eighth.

The story centers around Leonard Beebe, a young man who is continually depending on his wife. At the banquet given for his employees by Mr. Kincaid, president of the piano firm, Mr. Beebe gains the secretaryship to Mr. Kincaid through his wife's impulsive extemporaneous speech. The clever talk covered his embarrassment when he heard his memorized speech being given by his rival. After six months this ruse was discovered by Mr. Kincaid, but through the ingenuity of Mrs. Beebe, her husband kept his position.

Georgette Murphy, the much tried but always tactful wife, was very charming in her role. Harold Canoyer gave an excellent delineation of the difficult part of Leonard Beebe. Eric Pollard depicted successfully the character of the pompous, elderly gentleman, Mr. Kincaid. Mildred Syverson, as Mrs. Kincaid, pleased the audience with her ease of characterization and her quiet dignity. As the talkative office boy, Andrew Overby cleverly interpreted his role. The success of the banquet scene was largely due to the well delivered speeches given by the Toastmaster, Horace Earl, the politician, Preston McNurlen, and a vindictive rival for Beebe's position, Henry Mich. The banquet guests: Robert Bergquist, Georgia Dunlop, Catherine Hall, Frank McElwain, and Katherine Hooker, added to the vivacity and color of the scene. The minor parts taken by Annette Pettibone, the up-to-date stenographer, William Bakken and Donald Murphy, as truckmen, Everett McGill and George Main, as a barber and bootblack, heightened the well deserved interest of the audience.

This play marks the first dramatic offering of Miss Laura A. Henry, dramatic coach at Central. Much praise and credit must be given her for the splendid success of the production. For the first time in several years the January class offered its class play two consecutive nights.

"A KISS FOR CINDERELLA"

MEMBERS of the June class presented "A Kiss for Cinderella," by J. M. Barrie, Thursday and Friday evenings, May 6 and 7, with marked success. The settings were exceptional and the entire cast was well chosen.

Elinor Thompson interpreted the role of Cinderella, the adorable, imaginative, wistful, little waif, with understanding and feeling. Her acting was effective and realistic. Edward Heimberger splendidly portrayed the dual character of the abrupt, competent policeman, and Cinderella's blasé "prince" in the ballroom scene. This difficult part well proved his excellent acting ability. David Schultz acted the part of Mr. Bodie, the artist, in whose studio Cinderella first appears, with great ease and freedom. Dick Davies with skill cleverly played the part of Danny, the war veteran, a former plumber, who admires the Probationer, a true Countess, charmingly given by Roxaine Detlie. Doctor Bodie, a stern, capable woman, who cares for Cinderella during her illness, was well presented by Joyce Porter. The part of the maid was taken by Olive Walker. Caroline Woodhull was exceptionally well cast as Marion, "the woman with the past." The Man for the Coat, and the Man for the Shirt, who visit Cinderella's little shop, as portrayed by Walter Fawcett and Walter Bacon, were both droll and amusing. The fairy godmother, taken by Aileen Petri, lent a charm to the spirit of the play. The Irish woman, Mrs. Maloney, and the Queen in the ballroom scene, was well interpreted by Margaret Boddy.

The ballroom scene created an impressive atmosphere, yet it was given an amusing turn by bits of comedy. Paul Elder, as the pompous King, was well fitted for the part. The Lords and Ladies of the Court: John Moorhead, Forrest Sloan, Naida Block, Kathleen Fleming, Helen Leitz, Alice Caldwell, William Conroy, and Silas Towler, lent grace and dignity to the scene. Lord Mayor, as played by Donald Jeffery, was pompous; Lord Times, by Maurice Hebner, was imposing; the Censor, Julian Mullen, was awesome; and the Bishop, Carl Corse, was extremely dignified. Miss Laura A. Henry is to be lauded for her faithful and competent work in producing this most praiseworthy bit of drama.

AMERICAN LEADERSHIP EASY CONTEST

ANNUALLY $30, $20, and $10, as first, second, and third prizes respectively, are given by Harold N. Falk, president of the School Alumni Association, to the three students whose essays are judged the best in the American Leadership contest.

The subjects for the contest are announced by the principal, through the News, usually two months previous to the date set for the delivery in assembly of the three essays judged the best in thought and composition. Any student at Central may compete in the contest regardless of classification.

This year Lillian Gilliland, "A" senior, and Isabel Davis, "A" junior, tied for first place with their orations which they delivered before the student body, Tuesday, February 16. Catherne Noth, "A" junior, was given third place.

Lillian spoke on "John Hay, Statesman and Author"; Isabel on "James J. Hill, the Empire Builder"; and Catherine on "Joseph Jefferson, On Stage and Off."

Judges on thought and composition of all the essays submitted for the contest were: Mrs. R. T. Hargreaves; Mrs. Arthur Zierold, formerly Central public speaking teacher and play coach; and A. E. Helmick, Minneapolis Attorney. Judges for the final contest were Mrs. Luella B. Cook, John E. Mulligan, and Mrs. Arthur Zierold.

The giving of this money to the students at Central is just one of the few things which Mr. Falk has done for his Alma Mater.

HARMONY CONTEST

WITH the idea of expressing themselves by means of music the Harmony students of all the Minneapolis High Schools prepared for the eighth annual original composition contest under the leadership of J. Victor Bergquist, Harmony instructor, under the sponsorship of the Minneapolis Journal. The preliminaries at Central were held February 24. The program was as follows:

"Central High March," composed by Sunshine Noah and played by the band; "The Silent Wood," by Lois Elliot; "Spring's Entry," by Mildred Horman; "Overture," by William Hulwi; "Play Waltz," by Eleanor Roy; "A Moment Musicale," by Betty Welles; "Sleigh Bells," by Dolores Duell; "The Lullaby of the Forest," by Harriette Lake; "Fantasie," by Mary Moody; "A Day With Mary" (consisting of four parts: "The Morning," "Mary's Problems," "Mary's Mother," "Mary's Playtime"), by Murilla Kirschan; "Manitosham's Flute Call," by Eleanor Ferris; "A Spring Day," by Marjorie Whitney; "A Reflection," by Violet Christoferson; "Consolation," by Agnes Grimstad; "Danny O'Shane," by Gertrude Johnson; "The Bells of Eve," by Lucile Urban; "Petite Waltz," by Helen Sears; and two compositions, "A Wood" and "Prelude," by Evelyn Eastman.

Harriette Lake, Violet Christoferson, and Evelyn Eastman won first, second, and third places, respectively, in the Central contest. In the city finals Harriette Lake of Central won first place, Harriet Dahl of South, second, and Bernice Peterson of Roosevelt, third. Harriette Lake placed second last year. Out of eighteen prizes offered so far Central has won seven: Four firsts, two seconds, and one third.

"NERVES"

"NERVES," a one-act melodrama by John Farrar, was presented in a special assembly, May 20, 1925, by members of the Wranglers' Club.

The action of the story takes place in France, where an American flying squadron is stationed during the World War.

Feeling and understanding were put into the leading roles of Jack, the nerve-shattered aviator, and Ted Hill, the determined young captain, as portrayed by Harold Canoyer and Bingham Hood. The other characters portrayed by Lloyd Donahue, Richard Grisdale, Merrill Cragun, Hubert Smith, Fred Frasier, and Elmer Westmoreland were well interpreted.

Miss Madeline Long, English teacher, who directed the play, is to be credited and praised for her work.

COMEDY CONCERT

ORIGINALITY and cleverness marked the third annual Comedy Concert at which fourteen acts were presented Friday evening, February 19. The proceeds of approximately four hundred dollars were for the benefit of the Stadium fund. The entire performance was exceptionally well presented.

Clever pantomime illustrated the light phases of "The Evolution of Dixie," played by the orchestra as the opening number. "Two City Slickers," a diverting burlesque, was given by William Davidson and George Clingman. "The Lady Loses Her Hoop," a bit of English comedy of the nineteenth century, was well presented by members of the Footlights Club. Judith Jones, Edward Heimberger, and William Thompson took the leading parts. Dances representing different foreign countries was the G. A. A. act. "Art is Long," was an original act cleverly given by the Skylight Club. Dorothy Milne acted as the art instructor, and Perry Peterson drew clever cartoons based on numbers. In a sketch of a tea room in a country club, given by the "C" Club, Edward Altland, Marjorie Oliver, Howard Routier, and Florence Johnson entertained the audience with skillful and intricate Charlestoning. The Glee Club gave their interpretation of "The Student Prince at Centralburg," excellently with Reuben Snesrud as the Prince. Singing and dancing acts were offered by the Girls' Club and French Club. The Press Club was represented by "Bill" Porter and "Ed" Heimberger, who sang a repertoire of popular songs with the banjo-uke accompaniment. A Central boys' orchestra accompanied a specialty dancing number by Florence Johnson and her partners. Sunshine Noah gave an excellent trombone solo. A striking melodrama showing a glimpse of a motion picture studio aroused the interest of everyone in the Hi-Y Club act. With the closing number, an overture by the band, another successful Comedy Concert was completed.

Miss Barbara Wright, in charge of the general arrangements, and John F. Robohm, Jr., in charge of the stage settings, deserve much honor and credit for their faithful work in this praiseworthy production.

STAGE FORCE

THE stage crew of Central High School has been very active in the last year just as it has been in other years. The crew has successfully produced five major productions which include the opera "Dorothy," given by the Glee Club, the January class play "To the Ladies," the third annual Comedy Concert given by the affiliated clubs of Central, the Glee Club's second opera, "Ichabod Crane," and the June class play "A Kiss for Cinderella."

It has been the work of this body not only to produce the scenic effects but to manufacture odds and ends of things that go to make up the finished appearance of any successful production.

The stage crew consists of Cutler Speed, manager; Douglas Martin, electrician; Richard Davies, scenic director; Ralph Brown, carpenter, and Leo Stain, assistant electrician. Much credit for the accomplishments of the stage crew must be given to John F. Robohm, who is the faculty adviser, as he has labored very patiently in the effort to produce the best dramatics for the least money.

The Central High School stage at the present time is in better condition than it has ever been before and it is due to its most efficient stage crew and faculty adviser, Mr. Robohm.

BANK STAFF

DURING the past two years interest in banking in Central High School has been steadily increasing. The banking in Central is under the direct control of a student board of directors together with the faculty adviser, Edwin M. Barton. There is one cashier in each advisory group who has charge of that room. It is the duty of the directors to oversee the work of the cashiers and to stimulate the interest of the pupils in banking.

The banking system has a program committee, a publicity agent, and a poster committee. These committees aid the cashiers in their work. The publicity agent Sanford Durocher has charge of running ads in the News, writing slogans, and preparing news stories. The poster committee headed by Ed Skinner takes care of all posters displayed in the halls and rooms. The program committee has charge of entertainments. This committee supervised by Ruby Downing and Selma Smith prepared programs of interest for the meetings of the cashiers.

This spring the bank held a contest to determine which were the most efficient cashiers and directors. The bank offered as a prize to the directors a subscription to the Centralian and subscriptions to the Quest and News were offered to the cashiers.

Much interest is being manifested in the bank, and it is a growing institution of Central. One of the big factors in the success of the bank is the capable and efficient work done by Mr. Barton, aided by the faithful work of the following students as directors: Richard Gilbert, president; Selma Smith, vice-president; Hazel Epperson, secretary; Lillian Christoferson, office secretary; Harriet Rogge, Sanford Durocher, Edward Skinner, John Salt, Bernice Ashwell, Ruby Downing, Phyllis Shaw. The aim of the directors is to get the students to give intelligent care to their finances; that is, to encourage thrift.

FOOTLIGHTS CLUB

FALL TERM		SPRING TERM
Earl Cody	President	Richard Davies
Elinor Thompson	Vice-President	Mary Thurston
Helen Rhame	Secretary	Caroline Woodhull
Harold Benjamin	Treasurer	Edward Heimberger

THE Footlights Club is the one purely dramatic club in Central. Only Juniors and Seniors are eligible, and tryouts are held for the purpose of obtaining new members at least twice a year. The members of the club themselves are the judges, aided by the faculty adviser.

The most important feature of this year's program for the Footlights Club was the production of the little playlet, "The Lady Loses Her Hoop." The club presented this playlet as part of the third Comedy Concert. Judith Jones in the role of Lady Phyllis and Edward Heimberger as the hero were charming. The villain was portrayed very realistically by William Thompson.

Early in the year the club had charge of an assembly for Thanksgiving Day. The aim of the program was to portray the way in which this holiday had been observed in other lands previous to this time. The first scene showed the Greek ceremony; a country scene, and the Pilgrim fathers followed; and last of all was a modern Thanksgiving reunion.

In January a very enjoyable masquerade party was held at the home of one of the members.

The Footlights Club has had a new and enthusiastic adviser in Miss Laura A. Henry. It is hoped that she will continue to be the adviser, and that the club will have an even more delightful and entertaining year in the future than it has had in the past.

Come, fill the Cup, and in the fire of Spring
Your Winter-garment of Repentance fling:
The Bird of Time has but a little way
To flutter .... and the bird is on the Wing

ORGANIZATIONS

SILENCE ROOM COUNCIL

FERN SPAULDING - - - - - - - - - - Supervisor
MISS GENEVIEVE S. MCDILL - - - - - - - - Faculty Adviser

THE Silence Room was organized in 1924 by the girls' social clubs of Central, with the help and advice of Miss Genevieve McDill, Dean of Students. This year, because of the growing needs of the Silence Room, the organization was turned over to the school.

The council is composed of eleven monitors, who each have charge of the Rest Room for one period of the day, and a Superintendent. These girls are chosen from a special list recommended by the faculty for the qualities of dependability, courage, and truthfulness. The Superintendent is usually a girl who plans to go into the nursing profession after her graduation from high school. Fern Spaulding, who has been Superintendent for the last year, will enter Asbury Hospital next fall. The members of the council for the year are: Olive Walker, Katherine Noth, Hazel Swan, Lily Folden, Lucile Asp, Elsie Grenander, Jeanette Johnston, Constance Miller, Adeline Kerrigen, Catherine Rogers, and Margaret Miller.

The monitors wear white aprons and caps when on duty and their aim is to keep the room restful and sanitary. Each girl is responsible for the conduct and condition of the Silence Room during her period. The Superintendent has charge of buying all supplies and inspecting the room. She makes a daily report to Miss McDill.

The Silence Room or Rest Room as it is often called, is to be used both for emergency cases and minor illness. No girl may be in the Rest Room more than two periods or more than four days in one month without special permission from the Dean. A card catalogue and a daily ledger is kept of all cases for the use of teachers and parents. Often such a physical history of a girl aids a physician in case of a serious illness.

THE Senior Class Council is an organization composed of representative students from the June, 1926, graduating class. The council was organized because the advisers and class officers thought that the Senior class would be run in a more efficient manner if the class business were submitted to a smaller group of students, who could decide what matters were worthwhile to bring before the class.

The council does not decide anything definitely. The subject is discussed freely and if it is thought worthy of the attention of the class, the council recommends it to the class.

The members, who were picked by the advisers and class officers, were chosen for having the following qualifications: good scholarship; personality; leadership; ability along the social, artistic, or business line; initiative; and dependability. The following twenty students were chosen as being most representative of the class: Ronald Brachlow, John Moorhead, Walter Fawcett, Harry Thorson, George Murphy, Jack Chambers, Richard Grisdale, Carl Corse, Eugene Rogers, Loren Oliver, Lillian Gilliland, Alfreda Hoff, Ruth Guthrie, Elinor Thompson, Kathleen Fleming, Joyce Porter, Helen Thorvilson, Alta Serkland, Aileen Petri, Caroline Woodhull.

The class officers are officers of the council and the class advisers also act as the advisers of the smaller organization.

SENIOR COUNCIL

FALL TERM		SPRING TERM
John Moorhead	Chairman	John Moorhead
Norton Cross	Vice-President	Kenneth Rubrecht
Mary Mallory	Secretary	Kathleen Fleming

THE Senior Council is the student governing body of Central. It was established in 1921 to manage the general activities of the high school with the advice and cooperation of the principal, Richard T. Hargreaves.

This organization consists of twenty-one students. Two representatives are elected by the "A" Junior class; the president and secretary and four representatives are sent by the "B" Senior class; the president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, and four others represent the "A" Senior class; and the membership is completed by the presidents of the following clubs: Girls' Club, "C" Club, Glee Club, Hi-Y Club, and the G. A. A.

The Senior Council has taken charge of many assemblies during the year. On the day of the homecoming football game several prominent Central Alumni were secured to speak to the students of Central. During the basketball season several pep fests were held to arouse interest in the games.

The council had charge of decorating the goal posts for football games and of the selecting of cheer leaders.

Money was raised for the Stadium fund by selling "C" buttons and canes with red and blue streamers. The council also collected over one hundred dollars from the sale of athletic tickets.

This year the council started an inquiry to find out the number of students who participate in extra curricular activities and belong to student organizations. The purpose of this study was to learn what sort of activities were lacking at Central and to create them if necessary.

LIBRARY BOARD

FALL TERM		SPRING TERM
Henry Bessesen	Chairman	Kathleen Fleming
Kathleen Fleming	Secretary	Elinor Ferris

THE Library Board has proved the success of student government through its efficiency in preserving order in the library during study periods.

The chairman of the board and two of the members are chosen by the Senior Council. The rest of the board is composed of the library monitors, who are appointed by the chairman.

One monitor and one assistant are on duty each period of the day, and are entirely responsible for the behavior of the students in the library. The monitors collect the library slips which the students receive from their study room teachers. Anyone who continually talks or otherwise disturbs other students in the library is given a blue slip stating when the student is to appear before the board. No one who has a blue slip is admitted to the library until they appear before the board. Every Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock, the board meets in room 221A to try the offenders. The meetings are in the form of a trial, where an offender is given a chance to explain his actions. If he is proved to be a nuisance, his library privileges are taken away from him for a period of from one to six weeks, depending on his offence.

Ingolf Dillan, faculty adviser, has done much to make the board a success, and his wise and patient guidance is much appreciated.

THE C. C. C. Club was organized in 1924 for the urpose of promoting in Central High School, Courtesy, Consideration, and Cleanliness. The entire student body is a member of the organization, but the actual work is done by the cabinet and a staff of officials. These officials who see that the rules of the club are carried out are recommended by the teachers. During the fall term there were 120 officials placed about the building. There were only 80 officials on duty in the spring term.

Protection of students' lockers and maintenance of quiet in the halls are two of the important services which the C. C. C. has given in trying to carry out the idea of Courtesy and Consideration.

The picking up of waste paper, and the maintaining of order in the lunch room are taken care of by the club.

Officials are placed on the stairs betweeen classes to regulate traffic. This has cut down the amount of tardiness in school.

Several meetings were held to acquaint the freshmen with the rules of the club, and meetings have also been held for Junior and Senior boys and girls to remind them in what way they were failing to uphold the ideals of the club.

Penny collections are held each year to raise money to buy badges for the officials and to buy locks.

Miss Rebecca Burt has given much of her time and labor to make the club a big success.

THE Girls' Athletic Association was organized to promote girls' athletics and to create a feeling of friendship among the girls of Central.

The organization is governed by a board, which is made up of the officers and the chairmen of the different committees. Besides the officers, the membership for the last year consisted of Dorothy Barger, baseball chairman; Jeanette Sweeny, skating chairman; Vivian Haines, tennis chairman; Dora Anderson, volleyball chairman; Jean Speer, swimming chairman; Marion Caldwell, track chairman; Olive Walker, membership chairman; and Marian Kurth, social chairman.

Any girl in the school may join the club; and in order to participate in any of the girls' sports, it is necessary to be a member.

When a girl has won one hundred points in any one sport, she receives a red and blue class numeral, and a chevron is awarded for each additional hundred. A girl who wins six hundred points is given a red and blue "C"; and when she wins one thousand points, she is awarded a silver loving cup. This cup represents not only athletic ability, but good character, scholarship, sportsmanship, and leadership.

On Hallowe'en a big get-acquainted party was given for the new members. In May a banquet for this year's point winners was held.

Miss Hannah A. Nutter serves as treasurer and adviser of the organization and has done much to help the club carry out its plans.

CENTRALVILLE

BETTY WELLES - - - - - - - - - - - - Chief Justice
STELLA PETERSEN - - - - - - - - - - - City Clerk
MAX SCHWARTZ - - - - - - - - - - - - City Treasurer

CENTRALVILLE is a miniature city, organized and supervised by Mrs. Helen B. Pink, Community Life Problems teacher. Its membership consists of the students of her C. L. P. classes. It was organized to give the students a chance to see how the different types of city government work.

The city has the city manager type of government. Each of Mrs. Pink's five C. L. P. classes is a ward and elects one judge and an alderman. The aldermen not only act in Centralville, but they take charge of the class in case Mrs. Pink is absent from the room. The judges settle various disputes which arise in their wards. The Chief Justice decides the important cases.

The other officers are all elected at large. The Mayor or the City Manager presides over all the meetings. The City Manager usually supervises the business matters. The City Clerk keeps records of the minutes; and the City Treasurer collects the personal taxes which are levied according to necessity.

A Planning Commission is chosen to provide programs at meetings, exhibits, and material for the bulletin board. At the meetings the students give talks on C. L. P. subjects, have debates and mock trials, and present original plays.

Centralville does a great deal to promote higher scholarship. Anyone who falls below in his marks is disqualified to hold an office.

ORCHESTRA

THE orchestra, organized fourteen years ago by Charles Pehoushek, has become one of the most important factors of school life. When first organized it met only once a week and with competent leadership soon became firmly established.

In 1922 while Mr. Pehoushek was absent on a trip to Europe, Sidney H. Morse assumed the directorship and still maintains it. The orchestra has been enlarged and is fast becoming one of the best in the city. This year a bassoon, played by Grace Nosby, was added. It is one of the two in Minneapolis.

The orchestra each year assists the Glee Club in making the opera presentations successful. As its contribution to the Comedy Concert it gave an illustrated version of "The Evolution of Dixie." Besides this the orchestra provides music for entertainments in the school and in assemblies.

THE BAND

THE Central High Band under the direction of Charles Pehoushek is ranked as one of the leading school bands in the city. The band this year contains forty-five pieces.

Central High has been represented by its band on frequent occasions by its outside appearances. This year the band gave a program from the radio station W. A. M. D. at the Hotel Radisson, and rendered a program at Donaldson's Tea Rooms during Music Week.

Besides filling outside engagements, the band furnishes music for assemblies in the school, and adds greatly to the enthusiasm at athletic contests.

GIRLS' "C" Club

FALL TERM		SPRING TERM
Katherine Duffy	President	Dora Anderson
Olive Walker	Vice-President	Elna Snider
Elizabeth Thomas	Secretary-Treasurer	Dorothy Barger

THE Girls' "C" Club was established in 1923 to promote interest in girls' athletic activities. Any girl who has won a "C" is eligible for membership. This "C" is awarded by the Girls' Athletic Association to any girl who has won 600 points in volleyball, hiking, swimming, tennis, skating, track, or baseball.

Year by year more girls are becoming interested in athletics, and the "C" Club has proved an incentive to many to win a "C." New members are taken in once every term. At the last initiation, which was held at the home of Olive Walker, six new members were admitted, which brings the total number of members to sixty, fifteen of whom are active. The active members are: Dora Anderson, Elna Snider, Dorothy Barger, Lillian Gillilland, Elizabeth Thomas, Agnes Grimstad, Olive Walker, Frances Hanson, Frances Morse, Marjorie Bergstrom, Crystal Nelson, Helen Meyers, Dorothy Davies, Marion Caldwell, and Elizabeth Cleary.

The meetings are held the first Wednesday of every month at the home of one of the members. The alumnae attend the meetings and take a very active interest in the club.

The "C" Club does not devote its time entirely to athletics. This year the members decided to fill scrap books which were donated by the Public Library. The scrap books were distributed to various hospitals in the city.

The club advisers, Miss Clare E. Bell and Miss Evelyn Bowen, have devoted much time to the club and much of its success is due to them.

THE Boys' "C" Club is one of the best known organizations in Central. It was founded in 1923 for the purpose of bringing together boys who had won letters in tennis, golf, football, basketball, swimming, or cross country. The two requirements for membership are an athletic "C" and a good character.

The club has a very worthwhile aim in trying to make athletics an honored and worthy feature of school life. Its aim is accomplished by promoting good sportsmanship; clean, vigorous athletic competition; and high scholarship.

Each term an initiation is held for the new lettermen. This year one of the initiations was held in the form of a steak fry. Much fun and jollity, as well as more serious thoughts, are present at these initiations.

The "C" Club has proven itself very beneficial to Central through its work of keeping order in the auditorium during assemblies. A number of members assisted the C. C. C. Club by patrolling the boys' locker rooms during lunch periods.

Much credit is due to Weston W. Mitchell and Joseph Markley in whom the club has found two very enthusiastic advisers.

WITH a membership of over 175, the Girls' Club enjoys the distinction of being the largest club in Central. Its aim to carry out its motto, "Growth, Education, and Service," has made it one of the most active and influential clubs in the school.

All Junior and Senior girls are eligible for membership. The club has very high ideals in trying to promote good fellowship and friendliness among its members.

A cabinet composed of the officers and the chairmen of the committees meets before the meetings to discuss business which is to be brought up in the regular meeting. Meetings are held every Thursday.

The Girls' Club has done a great deal in the past year to be of real service to others. In the fall the yearly contribution was sent to Singing Carr, a small settlement school in Kentucky. Ten dollars were donated to the Community Fund by the club. At Thanksgiving time, baskets of food were sent to needy families. Several of the meetings were turned into sewing meetings. The girls dressed dolls which were sent to the General Hospital. At Christmas time, the club entertained about twenty-five little boys and girls from North Minneapolis. There was a real Christmas tree and each child received a present. In the spring the girls made bright colored scrap books.

Last fall, the Girls' Club proved its loyalty to Central by selling "C" buttons before all the football games. About one hundred and twenty-five dollars were raised in this manner for the Stadium Fund.

GIRLS' CLUB—JUNIORS

EVERY year the club holds a party to welcome all the new girls and make them feel more at home at Central.

November 19, a tea was given for the girls' mothers for the purpose of getting the mothers and girls better acquainted. The decorations and refreshments were carried out in pink and white.

On December 9, the Girls' Club entertained the Hi-Y Club. Supper was served and a very entertaining vaudeville bill was given.

In return for the delightful Valentine party which the Upper Class Club of West gave for the Girls' Club, the Central girls gave a St. Patrick's tea for the girls of West. The whole program was Irish and the decorations were green and white which were both Irish colors and the colors of West High School.

April 29, the club held its annual May day Sunlite. The proceeds of the Sunlite were given to the Ida V. Probett Fund.

During the spring term a very interesting series of talks were given by business women on vocations for girls. These talks were very helpful and educational.

The advisers of the Girls' Club for the past year have been Miss Mary N. Powers, Mrs. Helen B. Pink, and Mrs. Mary C. Percy. Miss Genevieve McDill also has helped the club greatly by her kindly advice and encouragement.

THE Norse Club has progressed very successfully this year in carrying out its two main purposes for organization, namely to create a feeling of good fellowship among the students of Norwegian, and to bring to the rest of the school a greater knowledge of Norwegian art and literature.

The club was formed only a year ago and now has forty members enrolled. Its meetings are held alternating Thursday evenings to discuss business and to enjoy a social hour. The club has been most fortunate in securing talented Norwegian speakers and soloists who have made these meetings very interesting.

Several very interesting parties have been held at the homes of club members, one being a sleighride which was held in February.

On Friday 15, the club successfully carried out one of its purposes, that of acquainting the students of Central with Norwegian art. Through the earnest efforts of Mr. Absolom E. Erdahl, the club adviser, two well known Norwegian artists appeared in an assembly. Madame Arna Heni, famous Norwegian interpreter of Ibsen, read the last act of Ibsen's play, "The Master Builder." A well known Norwegian violinist, Mr. Peer Bolstad, played three numbers, accompanied by Elna Sunnby.

THE Gotha Club was formed in the fall of 1924 when the Scandinavian club found that it was growing too large and divided into two organizations, one for students of Norwegian and the other for the students of Swedish. The latter group chose the name, Gotha, as typifying a region in Sweden.

The club was formed to promote interest in the Swedish language and culture. Any student who is studying Swedish in Central or who is interested in Swedish may join.

At the meetings which are held the first and third Tuesdays of every month, Swedish programs are given and Swedish games are played to promote greater ease in the use of the Swedish language. The first meeting of the month is devoted mostly to business and the second is a social gathering. These meetings are held at the homes of the members, usually in the evening.

A banquet was held at Norway Hall by all the Swedish and Norse clubs of the city. The Gotha Club and the Norse Club had a joint meeting early in the spring.

On the night of Open House the club presented several Swedish scenes in costume. The club also held a candy sale to raise money.

Miss Marie Lundeen, club adviser, has devoted much time to organizing and encouraging the club.

THE French Club, "Le Foyer," was organized in 1919 for the purpose of creating a keener interest in French among the students of the French department. A great deal of interest has been shown in the club because of the ever increasing popularity of the French language. Any student who has studied French is eligible to this organization.

The club advisers, Miss Anna M. Gay, who is new to Central this year, Miss Clair F. Helliwell, and Mrs. Alice F. Drechsler, with the officers and the chairmen of the committees form the executive board. This board meets before each meeting to discuss all important questions.

The club meetings are held monthly in the club rooms. Each meeting is made as interesting as possible by French playlets, dialogues, travelogues, and music by French composers. Refreshments are served at each meeting. During the year an interesting travelogue was given by Miss Rose Muckly of South High School about her trip through Europe. Among the playlets which were given were "La Poupe's," "La Lecon de Francais," "Les Trois Ours," and several scenes from "La Poudre aux Yeux."

One of the most interesting meetings of the year was a joint meeting with the West High "Cercle Francais." At Christmas time the club had a Christmas party with a tree and presents for everyone.

During the year the club has given candy sales to raise money for the Ida V. Probett fund.

A VERY successful and prosperous year for the Spanish Club of Central, "Los Castellanos," has just ended. The club is composed of the students of the Spanish Department.

The most important event of the year was a joint meeting of all the Spanish clubs of the city which was held at North High School, November 17. The program consisted of numbers offered by each club. The Central organization presented a Spanish play, "El Doble Robo," which had a cast of three people: Beatrice Edwards taking the part of Elisa; Roxaine Detlie, of Teresa; and John Salt, of Pedro.

At Christmas time the club had a delightful party. Two Spanish plays were presented by club members. A Charleston contest, charades, and refreshments added to the enjoyment.

After all the debts of the fall semester were paid, the balance of the money in the treasury was given to the Ida V. Probett fund. Candy sales were given to raise additional money.

A silk Spanish flag with a standard was purchased by the club and will be left to the school.

The advisers of the club for the last year have been Mrs. Lucile Hays and Mrs. Dorothy Edson.

THE Latin Club was organized in 1916 and it is the oldest and largest language organization in Central. It has at present a membership of almost one hundred and has done much to accomplish its purpose of encouraging school spirit and creating a greater interest in Latin.

The most interesting feature of the Latin Club's program this year was "The Roman Triumph," which was presented by the Latin Department March 23. The play "Perseus and Andromeda" was used as the basis for this very charming entertainment. The proceeds were divided between the Athletic fund and the Ida V. Probett fund.

In December, Mrs. E. W. Holway, wife of Professor Holway of the University of Minnesota, who has spent three years of her life in South America, gave a very interesting talk before the club on "Our Latin Neighbors."

A very enjoyable St. Valentine Party was given on February 11. The program and refreshments all carried out the spirit of St. Valentine's day.

Another very interesting feature was the trip to the Art Institute in which the club saw the Roman and Grecian exhibits.

Miss Mary C. Harris, Latin teacher, acted as club adviser. She has spent much effort in promoting interest in the club.

THE Botany Club was organized to promote a greater interest in plant life and to create a better spirit of good fellowship among the students. The club has had a membership of about one hundred students throughout the past year.

During the last term the Botany Club held a series of six candy sales by which seventy dollars were raised. This money was all given to the Ida V. Probett Fund. The club has been a very liberal supporter of the fund and has given a large sum of money to it every year since it was founded.

All the programs given at the meetings contain something of educational value especially interesting to Botany students. One of the most interesting talks of the year was given by Mrs. Holway of the University of Minnesota, who has spent several years in South America.

On St. Patrick's day and at Easter the meetings were made especially interesting by seasonable entertainments and enticing refreshments.

An enjoyable trip was made to the University Biology Museum during the spring term.

Miss Cora Groth and Miss Elsie Edlund, club advisers, have done much to maintain the standards of the club.

THE Commercial Club was organized in 1924 by the teachers and students of the Commercial Department with the idea that students taking the Commercial course should have an organization in which they could participate in discussing commercial problems. The club has grown rapidly and is now one of the largest in the school, having a membership of almost two hundred. Commercial students of the three upper classes of the school make up the membership. The meetings are held on the first Wednesday of every month.

Very interesting speakers have been secured during the year. Such people as Sheriff Earl Brown, Mrs. Esterly of the Placement Bureau, and Miss Pike of the Employment Department at the Dayton Company have given very educational talks which will do much to help the students succeed in the business world.

In the course of the year a series of vanishing luncheons were given by the girls of the club to raise money for the Ida V. Probett fund.

Miss Rhea Runice and Miss Agnes Carey served as faculty advisers during the fall term. Miss Myrtle Turnquist and Miss Baker were the advisers for the spring term.

THE Press Club was founded in 1922 by the students on the News staff. It was later enlarged to include members of the Centralian staff and the Quest staff. All students who are on any of these three staffs may become members of the club without any additional qualifications; but other students who wish to join must submit a story in order to satisfy the membership committee of the candidate's ability.

This year a club pin was adopted by the members. It resembles a miniature of Franklin's printing press on a gold background.

The club has been fortunate in securing as speakers before the club several men who have had some experience in journalistic lines. Walter Rice, managing editor of the Minnesota Daily, the paper published at the University of Minnesota, spoke on the chances offered to freshmen by a college paper. Warren Smith, business manager of the 1927 Gopher, University of Minnesota year book, discussed the business management of high school and college publications. These talks have proved very valuable to the members of the Press Club because many of the students will continue with journalism either in college or as professionals.

John E. Mulligan, faculty adviser of the News, has been club adviser for the past year.

"TO promote a more friendly and democratic spirit among the girls of Central High School" is the purpose of the Central chapter of the Girl Reserves. The club was started last spring and has grown to be one of the largest and most active organizations in Central.

All the girls in Central of good character are eligible for membership. To become a member the girl must first signify her desire by signing up in Miss McDill's office. She must then attend three consecutive meetings. At the next "Recognition Service" she becomes a Girl Reserve.

The Central chapter presented a pageant at Simpson Methodist Church on November 20, picturing all the countries of the world where there are Girl Reserves. At Christmas time the girls painted little jars and filled them with candy. These jars were then given to the old ladies at the Jones Harrison Home. Christmas gifts were also sent to Indian children who live on a reservation in Wisconsin.

On January 25, the Girl Reserves and the Hi-Y Club held the first joint meeting between the two clubs at the Central Y. M. C. A.

Each summer two girls are chosen to represent the chapter at the conference held at Camp Okoboji in Iowa. There the girls receive new ideas which they bring back to their organizations.

The school advisers of the club are: Miss Louise B. Iles, Miss Lucile E. Lobdell, and Miss Genevieve S. McDill. The Y. W. C. A. secretary is Miss Nell Ansley.

THE Hi-Y Club of Central is an organization of Junior and Senior boys who "promote throughout the community high standards of Christian character."

The club carried out this purpose during the year by creating a tutoring bureau for freshman boys who needed help. Members of the Hi-Y who had good scholarship volunteered to help the freshmen. The club also proved its worth by supporting the "For Other Boys Fund."

A delegation of a number of boys was sent to the Older Boys' Conference, which was held November 30 at Red Wing, Minnesota.

On March 9 an all city Hi-Y meeting was held at the University of Minnesota. The Hi-Y members were taken on a trip around the University campus and later attended a big banquet at the Minnesota Union.

The Hi-Y Club works towards the development of the social as well as the mental side of a boy. On January 27, the club gave a party for the Girl Reserves and a big "Jamboree" was held in December to get the boys of the club better acquainted. January 21 Hi-Y Winter Sports day was observed at Glenwood Park. The program for the day consisted of skiing, tobogganing, and skating.

The stunt which was presented in the Comedy Concert proved that there is much acting ability in the club. The stunt was written and acted entirely by club members and proved the most interesting of all on the program.

William Chambers, Stewart Leck, and Francis Mallory have acted as club advisers for the past year, with Mr. Dillan as faculty adviser.

SCRIBBLERS' CLUB

Katherine Hooker	President	Margaret Boddy

Eleanor Fowler	Secretary	Eleanor Fowler
Ruth Guthrie	Treasurer	Ruth Guthrie

THE Scribblers' Club was organized in the spring of 1924 for the students in Central who are interested in purely literary writing. The purpose of the club is to promote and improve literary ability.

The membership of the club is limited to twenty-five students. In order to be admitted, a manuscript must be submitted by the prospective member, which is reviewed and judged by a special committee. The best writers are asked to join. Tryouts are held for new members at least twice a year. All the manuscripts by which the members were admitted are kept on file.

This year Mrs. Luella B. Cook, club adviser, gave a series of very interesting talks on "Playwriting." Mrs. Cook, who has taken a course from Carlton Miles, gave the members some very helpful points on the formation of a plot and the actual writing of a play. This not only helps the members in their writing, but makes them more appreciative of good drama.

As the club is interested primarily in actual writing it gives its hearty support to the Quest, Central's literary magazine.

FORUM CLUB

John Salt	President
Lillian Gilliland	Vice-President
Helen Thorvilson	Secretary
Gordon Bennett	Treasurer

FOR the purpose of furthering interest in debate at Central, the Forum Club was organized at the beginning of the spring term.

The membership of the club is limited to sixteen, and only students having the best of ability are admitted. The members of the School Debate team automatically become members of the club. All other students must prove their debating ability in tryouts which are held once a term.

Isabelle Gilliland, a graduate of Central, has been chosen as Honorary President of the club. While in Central she was a member of the School Debate team and participated in the Warren Debate. She did much to increase the interest in debate.

Owing to its short existence, the activities of the club have been somewhat limited. In addition to the business meeting, several social gatherings have been held at the members' homes. One of the most interesting meetings was the one at which the Sioux Falls debate team was entertained.

The faculty adviser is Charles T. Addington, debate coach, and much credit is due to him for the successful organization of the club. The club has received a good start and it should do much in the future to stimulate Central's forensic activities.

ORGANIZED thirteen years ago by Sidney H. Morse, music director, the Central High Glee Club has reached a pinnacle of success. The Glee Club has accomplished more this year than in years previous.

Its first success was registered upon the presentation of the comic opera "Dorothy," which requires earnest preparation. This piece of work, presented November 19 and 20, was so remarkably well done that Stanley R. Avery, Minneapolis composer, urgently requested that the club present his composition, the humorous opera "Ichabod Crane." This composition presented March 25 and 26 for the first time in eight years, proved to be one of Mr. Morse's numerous triumphs. The "Messiah," presented December 18 by the Glee Club in a chorus of three hundred, was one of the special features of this year. For the Comedy Concert the club's act proved to be one of the most noteworthy. Special music for the Baccalaureate and Commencement services was given by the Glee Club.

Too much praise and credit for the club's accomplishments cannot be given to Mr. Morse, who devotes his untiring energy and talent to this work.

THE SKYLITE CLUB

Vivian Haines	President
Lolita Wadman	Vice-President
James Niess	Secretary
Alberta Kimm	Treasurer

THE Skylite Club is the first organization in Central for art students since the city wide art club was discontinued three years ago. It is the youngest club in Central and was formed at the beginning of the second semester in order to further interest in art at Central and to give embryo artists an opportunity of meeting for work.

At the first tryouts the judges, Miss Ella Witter, Miss Jane Gray Thickens, and Miss Delphine Moreau, art teachers, chose twenty students to be the charter members. These students elected their officers, drew up a constitution, and chose Miss Witter to act as the club adviser. The charter members are: Julia Rarick, Shirley Aygarn, Ilyven Langly, Ruth Lundgren, Mildred Thorpe, Evelyn Eastman, Marguerite Anderson, Pearl Johnson, Dorothy Milne, Helen MacLachlan, Lolita Wadman, Alberta Kimm, James Niess, Constance Turner, Woodard Pollock, Vivian Haines, Rowayne Rowe, Dorothy Martin, and Lorenz Pendleton.

Since anyone in the entire school is eligible, the club decided to have tryouts for more members. Four more students were admitted and a waiting list was established for prospective members.

Several prominent artists of the Twin Cities were secured to speak to the club. The rest of the meetings were occupied by sketching and drawing.

But helpless Pieces of the Game He Plays
Upon this Checker-board of Nights and Days;
Hither and thither moves, and checks, and slays,
And one by one back in the Closet lays.

SEASON REVIEW

A COMPREHENSIVE and close perusal of the record books for the past Centralian year of April to April indicates that Central High athletics are still of the same high caliber which has made all Red and Blue teams feared and respected not only in the city but throughout the state and Northwest.

The championships hung up by Central teams representing ten different branches of sport include: one Northwestern, one State, and four City titles. In addition to this record five teams finished in the runner-up position in the Minneapolis High School leagues while the other three teams garnered two fourths and one fifth place as city ratings. Besides these brilliant team achievements numerous new school, city, and state records were established by individual stars.

As imposing as these accomplishments may seem a still greater one saw birth last fall when, through the unselfish loyalty and tireless efforts of the students, alumni, and friends of Central High, the dream of an athletic field was at last realized. As long as Central has been an institution an athletic field on which major contests could be held and with which intramural sports could be encouraged has been a dire necessity. Therefore with the final attainment of the long sought goal, every Centralite should find his heart swell with pride as he views this athletic monument to the undying spirit of Central.

FOOTBALL REVIEW

BEFORE the greatest assemblage of spectators ever to witness a Minneapolis high school athletic contest, the Central High football team won its third consecutive championship last armistice day at Nicollet Park when the gridders defeated North 20 to 19 in a game that will live forever in Central's gridiron history.

Since Central has been an institution, her athletic teams have won many thrilling victories and have fought many an inspiring battle, but while these contests of the past may equal the North game in thrills and inspiration, not one can claim superiority.

Although unconscious of the fact, the team spent the entire season in preparation for the title game. From the very beginning of the fall practice grind through the majority of the schedule games the way was rough and strenuous. Head coach Joseph Markley and his chief assistant, Weston W. Mitchell, found it difficult to uncover a lineup that pleased them. Combination after combination was tried with little effect until, with the opening game looming dangerously close, it was decided to use alternating players at the disputed positions.

Captain Preston McNurlen led his mates in the initial game of the year with Marshall, which resulted in a scoreless tie. The Markley-Mitchell team was doped to win but instead they encountered a determined Cardinal eleven which refused to consider defeat. A serious setback in strength was received in this game when Robert Bergquist, star tackle, was lost to the team for the remainder of the season by reason of the fact that he tore several ligaments in his left leg.

Showing decided improvement over the form they displayed against Marshall, the rejuvenated Central squad in their second game overwhelmed the South aggregation by a 25 to 0 score. The contest, which was the first to be played on the new Central athletic field, was marked by the fine playing of the Red and Blue line and the initial appearance of the Central passing game which was so successful all season.

Racing down the field through the fast gathering dusk John Keefe reached far in front of him and, tucking Clinton Riebeth's long pass under his arm, ran 30 yards for a touchdown to tie the score with Roosevelt at 14-14, while there was but a minute left of play. This encounter very nearly equaled the North game for thrills despite the fact that no title was at stake. Both teams were unable to score in the first period, but each received a counter in the second frame. Central's touchdown came as the result of a trick play by Keefe while Roosevelt scored on a Central fumble. No more scoring was accomplished until near the close of the final period when the Teddies gained their second touchdown due largely to an intercepted pass. Then victory was snatched out of their hands at the last minute when Keefe and Riebeth presented their spectacular play.

Preston McNurlen

The West game, which was next in the schedule, was played to a scoreless tie with both teams contenting themselves with defensive playing. The field was ankle deep in mud and consequently only the straightest of straight football was attempted which turned the contest into a colorless affair.

In the semi-final game of the season the Central gridmen easily overcame the Edison representatives by a 20 to 3 score. Don Martin, by his versatile playing, was the outstanding figure in Central's one-sided win.

The Central-North title contest had hardly got under way when North scored its first touchdown. After being held for downs after the kick-off, Gordon of North punted, but a Central fumble gave them back the ball on Central's 23 yard line. Gordon then plunged off tackle for 20 yards after which Knight scored on a triple pass. Two minutes later the Polars scored again. A second Central fumble gave North the ball on the 20 yard line and after several line bucks, Munn carried the pigskin over Central's goal on the identical play which accounted for the first touchdown .

Joseph Markley

The two teams then battled scorelessly until the second period when Central received her first touchdown. This came after line smashes by Plymouth Rehl, Riebeth, and Martin had brought the oval to North's one yard line, where the fourth play brought a score by Martin. North's last touchdown was made by Mileti on an intercepted pass. When Eric Pollard scored Central's second touchdown, and Martin kicked the goal, the Red and Blue were only five points behind their opponents. Central was fighting mad now and could not be checked. Rehl and Martin carried the ball to North's 25 yard line, where North held for three of the precious downs. With defeat staring Central in the face Martin threw a pass over the North goal to Keefe, who made a wonderful catch from amongst three North players and with this game-winning touchdown a new red letter day was added to Centrals' calendar of memory.

BASKETBALL REVIEW

UNTIL the 1926 basketball season came to its hectic close, the Central High basketball team under the tutelage of Weston W. Mitchell had never failed either to win the coveted title or else to finish the schedule in the runner-up position. But this season told a different story and Coach Mitchell, handicapped from the beginning with a green team, was forced to accept fifth place as the final rating of his 1926 basketball aggregation.

With the single exception of Captain Don Martin everyone of the previous year's regulars was lost to Mitchell when he issued the initial call for candidates soon after the close of the football season last fall. But despite the inexperience of the large squad of aspiring candidates it was not long before the new team which was to carry Central's colors had been selected.

This team consisted of Captain Martin, forward; Eugene Gleason, forward; Loren Oliver, center; John Keefe, guard; Watson Barger, guard; and Plymouth Rehl, utility. In addition to these men a capable squad of substitutes was composed of Vernon Forsberg; Philip Trapskin, Louis Ginsberg, Rodney Martin, Edward Anderson, Clarence Olson and Edwin Haislet.

After two months of intensive drilling and training, coupled with preliminary practice games, the hopeful basketeers opened their official season against the strong Edison quint on January 15.

This conflict was hard fought from start to finish, and it was not until the final quarter that Edison was assured of its 24 to 16 victory. The lead shifted constantly between the two teams, but the Central five were unable to withstand the short passing attack of their opponents in the final quarter and fell before the superior onslaught.

In the second game on the schedule, Central downed North by staging a masterful last half rally which gave them a well earned 23 to 22 victory. The Polars led 10 to 5 at half time, but at the conclusion of the third period Central had overtaken their rivals by a 17 to 16 count. The last quarter was filled with thrills and surprises, but the final gun came immediately after Ty Gleason's winning basket and found Central with a narrow one point advantage.

The next encounter was lost by exactly the same margin with which victory had been gained the previous week. Captain Martin led the attack of the Mitchell-men in brilliant style, but the Roosevelt representatives proved themselves superior by one point and turned in a 22 to 21 win over Central.

Repeating their habit of "lose one, win one," the Central cagers journeyed to West and made their fourteenth successive basketball win over the Green and White a decisive one by a 34 to 8 trouncing.

The Red and Blue were caught completely off form in the following contest and lost to South by a dismal 23 to 6 score. The game was played on the Kenwood Armory floor and at no time could the Centralites hit their stride on the large court. The South machine was working to perfection, however, and overwhelming defeat was the result.

In meeting Edison for the second time at the beginning of the second round the Central lads played their best game of the year, but were given a 29 to 22 defeat. Martin and Gleason, together with their mates, headed the league leading Tommy aggregation up to the fourth quarter; but, weakened by the loss of regulars through penalties for personal fouls, the Mitchell players could not retain their lead.

In the next encounter North gained revenge for their previous close defeat by triumphing over the Red and Blue 29 to 19. Central matched score with the Blue and White in every period but the third when North accounted for 12 points and gave themselves a lead which Central tried in vain to surmount.

Their fourth straight defeat was administered to Central when Roosevelt staved off a last minute rally and thereby chalked up a 26 to 21 win over the Centralites.

Breaking the string of defeats, the Red and Blue repeated its early season performance and again overwhelmed West, this time by a 42 to 18 score. Ty Gleason accounted for 21 points in this contest, the highest total made by any one player in a single game the entire season.

The season's play came to an end as Central revenged itself for its former crushing defeat at the hands of South by giving them a real battle although the game was lost by a 29 to 23 score.

At first glance the season would appear to be a particularly unsatisfactory one, but considering the green team which was on the floor for Central, they did exceptionally well. Despite the handicap of inexperience Central won four games, lost five to the best city teams by close scores, and was defeated overwhelmingly only once.

1925 TRACK REVIEW

AFTER taking initial honors in every meet the Central High tracksters climaxed their highly successful spring season by sweeping all opposition before them in the state meet and thereby gained the state track championship for the second consecutive year.

In all the years of Central's regime as a leader in athletics no abler aggregation of track stars has ever carried the Red and Blue. The team was well balanced in every department and in addition to this men capable of repeatedly taking first places were the rule rather than the exception.

Conspicuous among the record breakers was the half mile relay team, headed by Captain Stanley Thomas. The remainder of the quartet was composed of Joe Meyers, Kenneth Rubreith, and Don Murphy. These four lads stepped their event in increasingly faster time in each meet until as a grand finale they hung up a new state mark of 1:30 4-5 for future teams to compete against. The aspirants for individual honors were led by Lawrence Johnson, who broke the previous state discus record by ten feet when he hurled the weight 123 feet and one and one-half inches. Besides this accomplishment "Duke" also broke the city mark and then traveled to Northfield where he smashed the annual Carleton meet record.

In the first event of importance on Coach Joe Markley's schedule, the Hamline Relays, the Central wingmen outdistanced the other Minneapolis competitors by taking a first, second, and third position in three events. The half mile baton carriers won their event handily and bettered the previous mark by three seconds. The other two positions were taken in the medley and mile relays. In the exhibition pole vault Elton Hess took first honors and set a new school record of 11 feet and 2¼ inches.

The Carleton meet at Northfield was a field day in more than one sense of the word for the Centralites. By taking seven first places in addition to placing well in all events the Central men piled up a total of 49 points and won the Twin City title for their third consecutive year. Central's nearest competitors was West with 33 points. Captain Thomas distinguished himself by taking two first places, in addition to running on the victorious relay team, one in the 100 yard dash and the second in the 220 yard low hurdles. The other men to capture the coveted first positions were: Lawrence Johnson, discus; Theodore Chalgren, 440; Joe Meyers, 220; and Elton Hess, pole vault.

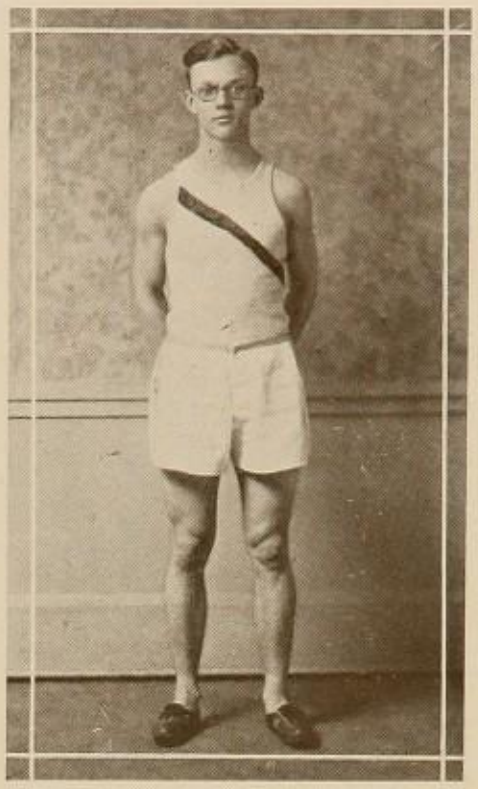
Permanent possession of the championship trophy was given to Central when they duplicated their previous year's performance and won the City Meet. Central led with 54 points while West again placed second, this time with 44 points.

Although Central filled only four first places they placed in every event and thereby owe their victory to this well rounded exhibition. As usual the half mile relay quartet broke the tape first. Francis Mallory in the 220 yard event, Ted Chalgren in the 440 yard run, and "Duke" Johnson in the discus throw, were the other men responsible for Central's four initial places. Central entered the meet a prime favorite but it remained to the last few events to decide the winner as West closely pressed Markley's men all the way.



Kenneth Rubrecht

Despite the closeness of the Carleton meet the Central cinder men easily won their second consecutive state title by winning 51 points against the ever second West train's 36 tallies. Five first positions, two of which set new records, were taken by Central. Johnson and the half mile relayers were the record breakers while Charles Reid scored in the high hurdles, Elton Hess in the pole vault, and Ted Chalgren in the 440 yard run.

GYM TEAM REVIEW

TWO years' supremacy throughout the city, state, and Northwest, that is the record held by the championship Red and Blue gymnastic team. When Joe Markley came from New Prague to coach at Central, he discovered George Groner, a talented and eager gymnast; but he also discovered that the school was not making use of this acrobat who had received excellent training from well known professionals.

George consented to coach a team to represent Central in the city and Northwestern meets which were to be run off in about six months' time. He chose as his future acrobats about a dozen promising looking sophomores and juniors and found these boys eager and willing to learn this new major sport.

The squad worked hard in their practice before the contests and suffered a few injuries, but these hurts only spurred them on to greater efforts in order that they might make a capable showing especially in the city meet.

Their efforts were rewarded in this meet by winning the city championship, and not only did they win the title but they showed a bag of tricks that had never before been seen in the high schools of Minneapolis. Other schools in this contest contented themselves by doing only mediocre stunts and using stationary rings. The Centralites, however, shocked the judges by using flying rings and performing Conference stunts on them. George Groner, who had been elected captain of the squad, took most of the first places and was closely followed by Herbert Schack. Duane Strong and Claude Hendrickson also made commendable showings for Central.

Two weeks later in March the acrobats journeyed to the University Armory to take part in their first Northwestern meet. This was the first year that high schools had entered the annual contest with any indication of strength. The Red and Blue athletes, however, disappointed the other high schools by bringing home the championship. In this contest Groner's men showed the perfection of form and daring which had won for them the city title. "Eddie" Altland was one of the stars of the contest, while the other bright lights were Groner, "Herb" and Otto Schack, Strong, and Hendrickson.

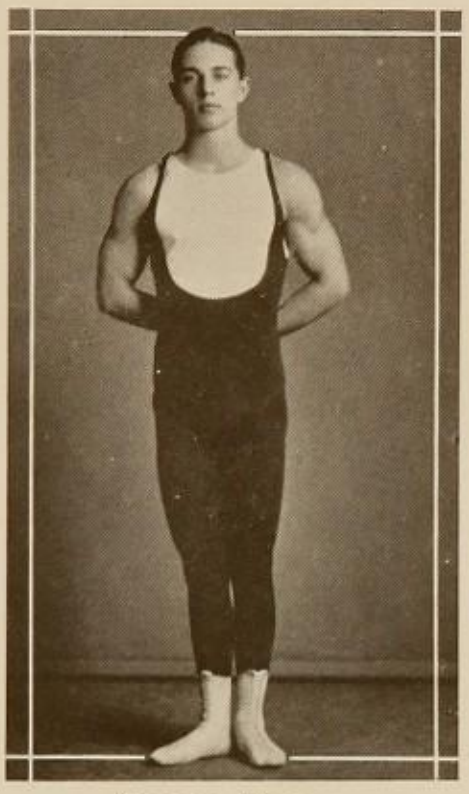
This meet marked the end of the 1925 season, but the champions received many out of town invitations for exhibitions, a few of which they accepted.

The gymnasts' first season was certainly a success, but the 1926 season was even greater. Claude Hendrickson and Duane Strong were lost through graduation and Groner had become a professional, thereby being eliminated from competition. The team was strong, however, and with a few new members added, George started to prepare them for their second year.



George Groner

Among the first year veterans were "Herb" Schack, the new captain, Otto Schack, Russel Thayer, Donald Davies, Marvin Van Dreser, Walter Bowker, and Gardner English. These men with George to coach them built up the squad which successfully defended all of last year's honors and in addition to that feat added more to them.

In the city meet the Centralites won the championship with less effort than had ever been previously exerted. North, as last season, captured second place, but was closely followed by Edison for this honor. Captain Schack was high point man for Central, displaying his usual fine work on the horse. "Jerry" Dotson, a new man, worked the parallel bars in fine fashion and captured first on this piece. "Mickey" Swartz, Red and Blue midget tumbler, took second place on the mats, while his brother, "Sam," displayed his prowess on the high bar.

In their second appearance in two years at the Northwestern meet the Central acrobats won the distinction of being the first high school to take first place in class "C." For six years straight, St. Olaf College had held a monopoly on this place and before that, other colleges had been the winners. By winning class "C" championship, Groner's squad defeated such schools as St. Olaf, La Crosse Normal, St. John's University, Augsburg Seminary, and St. John's High School.

Edison beat out North in this contest and won second place for high schools, while North had to be satisfied with third place honors. Dotson, Thayer, Captain Schack, and Davies, were again the bright lights of Central's performance, although "Sam" Swartz and Bowker accounted for themselves in good style on the horse. "Don" Coones gave a stellar exhibition on the rings and won a high place in this event.

When you go over the record of a squad that has won so many championships you naturally would think that the team had had wonderful support. But when upon further investigation you find that there had been no support whatever, then it is time to say that they are truly a wonderful combination.

SWIMMING

CENTRAL'S tanksters under the skillful coaching of Ingolf Dillan furnished the swimming fans with more thrills and upsets this season than that body of people has enjoyed for several years past. It was a well balanced aggregation that Coach Dillan and Captain "Eddie" Hirschoff selected to represent Central in the popular water sports, and not a team of individual stars as has previously been the custom at the Red and Blue school. The ability to take second and third places when it was impossible to capture first honors was the big factor which kept Central up in the championship class until she was finally toppled over by the West natators. Central and West met three times this year and the city championship was not decided until the last event had been run off in the last meet.

In the first meet of the 1925 season Coach Dillan's men met the West swimmers at the "Y" pool. It was evident even before the season had begun that the championship was to be decided between these popular rivals, Central and West, and the Red and Blue much to the aggravation of the Green and White school won the first setto, 38 to 31. Here the Red and Blue swimmers' ability to take second and third places put them in good stead, although Captain Hirschoff won his expected first place in the breast stroke. "Bob" Mitchell of the back-stroke department also pulled out a win for Central.

In the second scheduled encounter of the season the Centralites kept their mercury at 1,000 degrees by defeating Edison 47 to 22. Edison showed plenty of grit, but the talent was lacking, it being only that school's second year in this sport. The "Tommies" however are up and coming and should present formidable opposition next season.

In the Twin City contest, which was sponsored by the Minneapolis Athletic Club, the Red and Blue paddlers again came out victorious. Coach Dillan had entered two medley teams and these won second and third place which again showed how perfectly balanced his squad was. Captain Hirschoff also won second place, being nosed out at the finish by Byers of University High School for first place.

Edwin Hirschoff

The second West meet proved to be an upset, the Green and White aggregation winning 38 to 31, which was the exact score by which West had been beaten three weeks earlier. Frank Flory, 220 yard dash man for Central, realized the ambition for which he had been preparing two years, and beat Wilkenson of West in a spectacular race. This made a perfect tie for the title as both teams again defeated Edison and each held a decision over the other.

March 25 was the date set for the play-off and both schools were represented by large delegations. Showing a vast improvement over their other performance, the West squad captured the final meet and the title by downing the Red and Blue aggregation 39 to 30. Captain Hirschoff won his usual first place in the breast stroke, and also entered in the diving, but was unsuccessful in this department because of the lack of practice. Kenneth Kennedy, one of Coach Dillan's speedsters, came from behind in the 40 and 100 yard dashes and drew second place in both events, making him one of the high scorers of the meet.

Three exhibition meets were run-off throughout the season, the Centralites winning from Ryan Baths and Blake, and losing to the University High School. These gave the Red and Blue tanksters enough practice to keep them running in high gear and also gave Dillan a chance to watch his swimmers and not be so worried over the outcome.

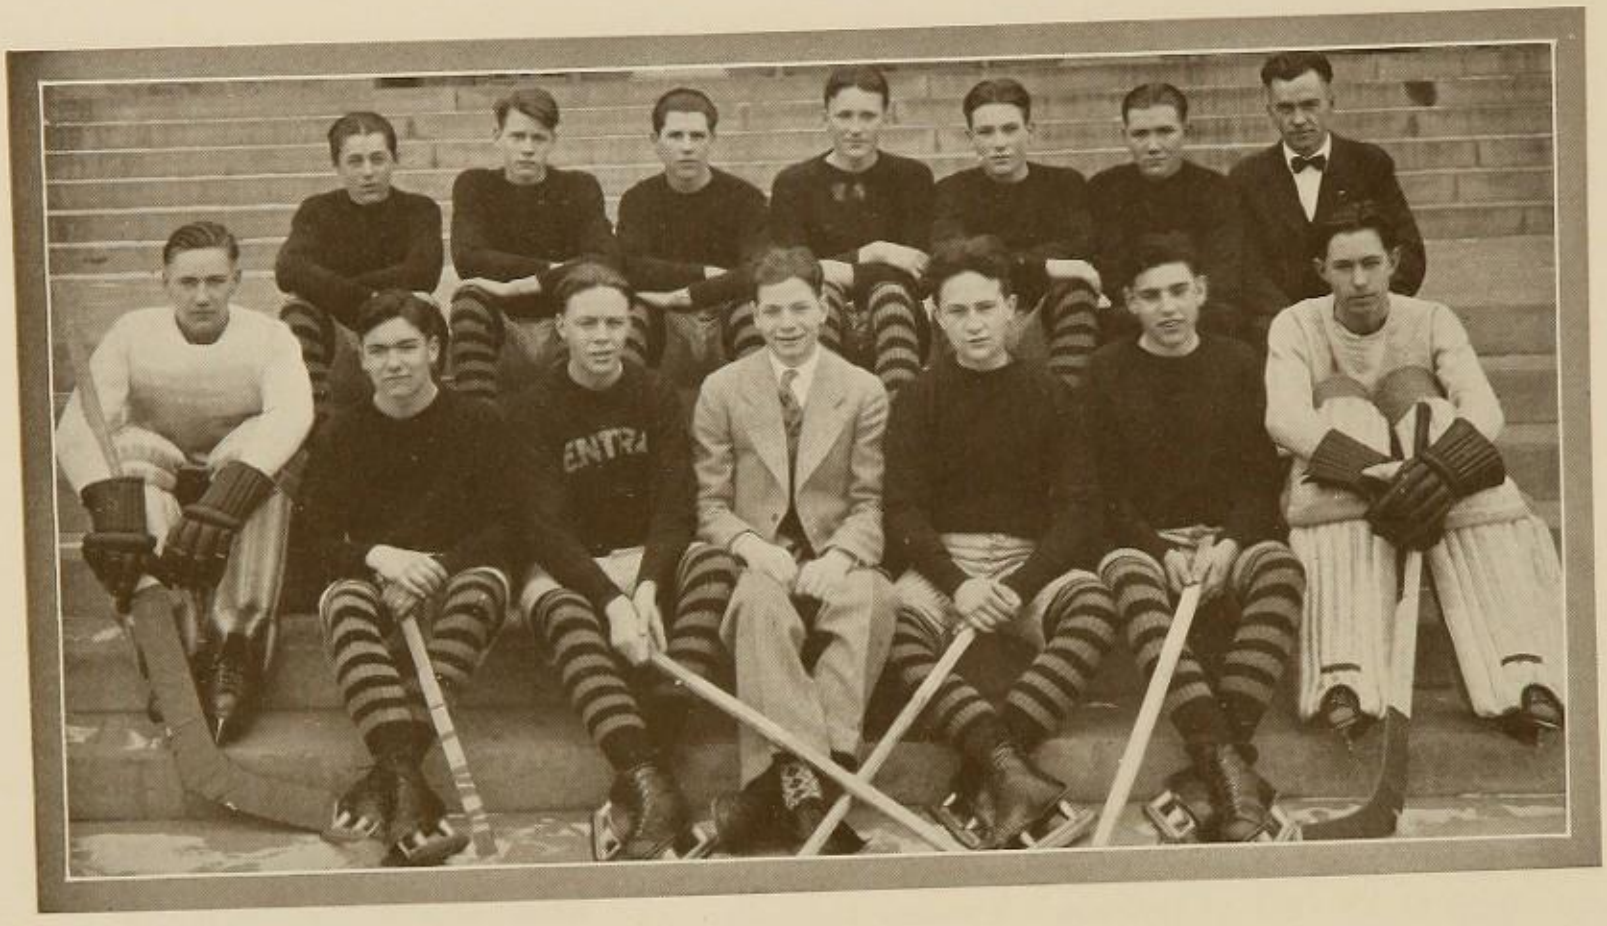
In the Northwestern meet this season the Centralites did not fare so well as in recent years. The competition was stronger and in much greater numbers than ever before, and "Eddie" Hirschoff was the only man to place, taking third place in the breast.

Ingolf Dillan

Central loses four stellar swimmers by graduation this year. Stuart Daniel, Lee McKee, and "Billy" Edlund graduate in June and James Wirth receives his diploma in January. All of these men could be relied upon to place for their school and their loss will naturally be felt next season.

Kennedy, who showed much promise of being a fast man, has been elected to lead the squad next year.

Considering that Dillan has a trained bunch of youngsters mixed in with a few promising veterans for his next season, it is hoped that a championship will be the result.



HOCKEY REVIEW

WEAKENED considerably by graduations last June, and again in January, the Central High hockey team failed to finish in second place for the first time in five years. The city title was won by West this season as it has been each year since 1922. Edison ended the race in the runnerup position, long held by Central. It was a disappointing year as Coach Paul D. Paine's men had set their hearts on bringing the trophy to Central.

Three members of the 1925 sextet finished their courses at the end of the year and were lost to this season's squad. Two more regulars, together with a pair of capable spares were graduated at the mid-year exercises so that but two of the players who made their letters last year played in the games on this season's schedule. Nevertheless a great deal of promising new material had been found and prepared for battle and this fact made the future appear a promising one.

The Red and Blue faced a formidable opponent in its initial game with West and was forced to accept a 3 to 0 defeat. Central's showing was a commendable one, however, as the champions were held to a lone score until the final minutes of play during which time they succeeded in nesting a pair of counters. This setback was not so disheartening considering the fact that West had held the championship for the last five years and were composed of a powerful aggregation for the 1926 season.

Dean Chadwick's last minute shot gave Central a well earned 1 to 0 victory over North in the second encounter of the year. The two teams battled on even terms for the greater part of the contest with the Centralites getting the majority of shots at the net. Grover Hazelton protected the Central cage in admirable style and warded off all the North's scoring bids. The Polars, however, gave Captain "Mike" Nestor's skaters a busy afternoon with their consistent playing.

The Southern representatives upset the dope in the third contest and came through with an unexpected 1 to 0 win over our home talent. Merrill McInerny, South scoring ace, tallied the winning counter. Central, in this encounter, seemed to lack the drive displayed in its previous contest with North.

Edison presented Central with its third defeat of the year by scoring a 3 to 1 triumph. James Feeney and Orville Olson were the Edison stars and this pair accounted for all of the Tommy scoring. Merle Breckheimer slipped in Central's only goal late in the third session. Failure to take advantage of their chances to score caused Central's downfall, many easy shots launched for the goal going wide of the mark.

Central met the climax of the year by trouncing Roosevelt 3 to 0 in the final game of the season. Chadwick, Breckheimer, and Gallagher all counted goals during the fray. In this contest the Red and Blue skaters showed the fight and power which had been missing since the North encounter.

Throughout the season the Central six established itself as a squad of fighters who never admitted defeat until the final whistle. It was this spirit that made them feared by the other sextets who finished with more impressive records in the standings.

Three members of the team were awarded places on the Minneapolis Tribune's second all city hockey team. Dean Chadwick, forward, Grover Hazelton, goal, and "Mike" Nestor, defense, were all placed at their regular positions. Our able Captain "Mike" Nestor, was also honored with the captaincy of the mythical six.

It is the hope of hockey boosters that a rink may be built out on the athletic field on which the team may practice next season. With a good sheet in close proximity to the school on which to practice and play games the players would be greatly benefited and the students would be influenced to come out and support the team. Hockey is becoming more and more popular every year, and when a sport becomes popular at Central, a championship generally is the result.

Paul Paine

1925 BASEBALL REVIEW

BY winning five games and losing three the Central High baseball team finished a somewhat disordered season in second place. At times during the schedule the diamond men displayed rare form but in several instances they were badly off form.

Captain Earl Evans was the mainstay of the pitching staff and his hurling coupled with his exceptionally fine hitting did much to place the Centralites in their runner-up position. During the spring Evans was given a tryout in the American Association and he will undoubtedly graduate into the professional ranks in a year or two.

The Red and Blue nine opened their season on April 24 against West and celebrated by turning in a 9 to 2 victory. After this initial victory the way was up and down until the end of the schedule on May 29 when the Roosevelt aggregation went down in defeat, thereby giving Central a clear claim to second place.

Arthur S. Gertz was at the coaching helm of the Central baseball camp. Mr. Gertz came highly recommended and with an extensive baseball career behind him. During his last year at the University of Iowa, he was captain and catcher of the baseball team. From the University he went to several minor league clubs and made a name for himself in minor league baseball.

The 1926 baseball team is just about to begin its official season as the Centralian goes to press. Catcher Louis Ginsberg was honored with the captaincy of the team while Frank D. Stansbery is coaching the men. The team appears to be well balanced throughout save a little weakness in the pitching department and should give a good account of itself in the forthcoming contests.

CROSS COUNTRY REVIEW

WHEN the first call for cross country men was sent out in the early fall of the 1925 season, prospects for a fast hill and dale team seemed exceedingly poor. The reason for such a dark outlook was very evident and discouraging. Only two veterans were available and what was even more disheartening, the squad was without a coach.

The two returning veterans were Captain Howard Routier and Norman Lorimer, our captain for 1926. These two men devoted much of their time in preparing the inexperienced harriers for the hard schedule before them.

The first meet with Roosevelt was lost by Central 83-37. Captain Routier covering the course in the fast time of 14 minutes and 39 seconds broke the 1924 city record by one second.

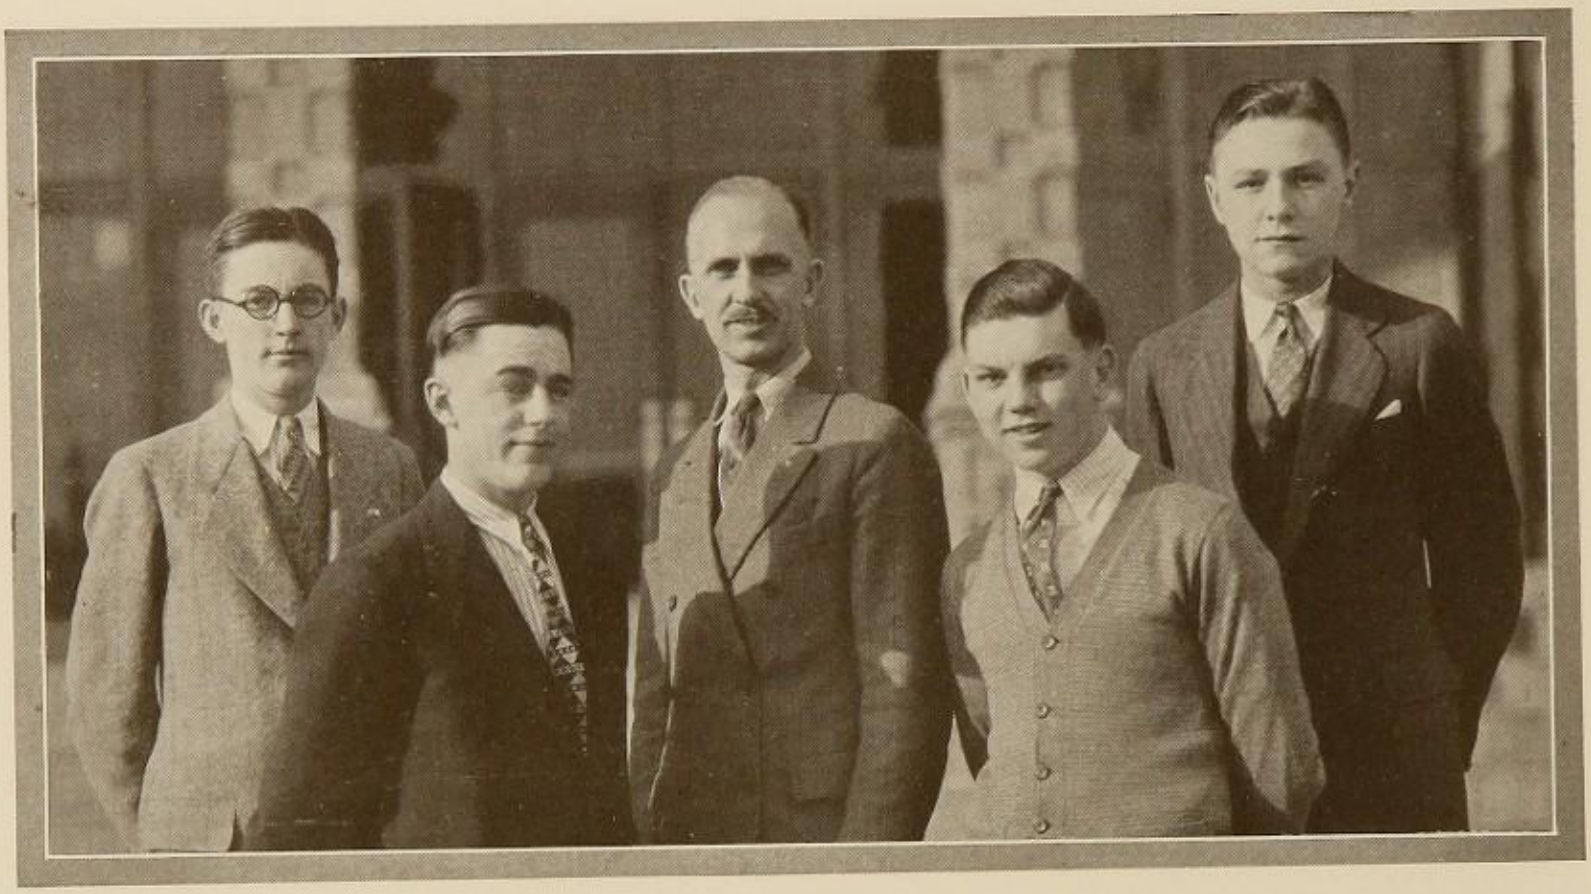
In the second meet the Central harriers showed a marked improvement and won from North 74-46. Howard Routier again took first honors, with Charles Parsonage, Stanley Rye, and LeRoy Brown taking the fifth, eighth, and eleventh places.

In the next two journeys over the Glenwood course, however, the Red and Blue runners did not fare so well, losing the third meet to West 74-36, and the fourth to Edison 83-37. Routier continued his fast pacing in these two long distance tours, taking first and second places respectively.

In the last city meet, Central again came to the front and passed South with a score of 87 to the Orange and Black's 33. Captain Routier captured first place, Parsonage, Lorimer, Edlund, and Fogal were among the first ten to cross the tape.

With a final rating of fourth place in the city standings, the Centralites plunged immediately into intensive training for the State meet. Routier, Brown, Rye, Parsonage, and Lorimer were the five men entered in the event.

Showing the results of hard training, the Central men upset the dope and brought home third place as an aggregate team standing. Routier finished sixth, Parsonage fifteenth, and Brown twentieth.



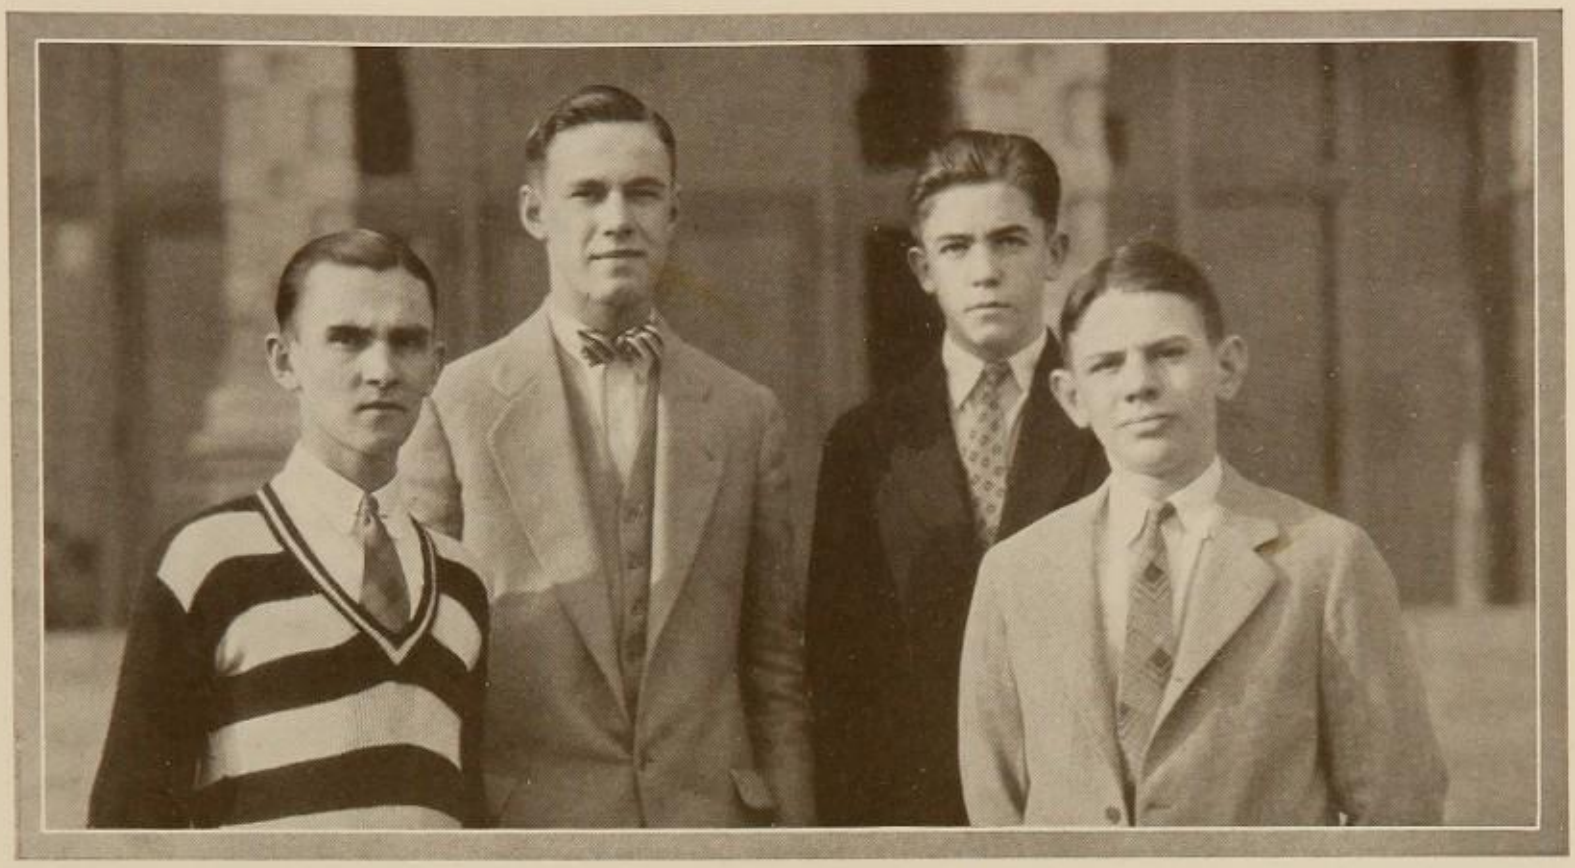
GOLF REVIEW

CENTRAL'S golf squad worked its way through a successful season to the runner-up position for the city title in the spring session of their 1925 schedule. North High School won the final match and the title, making it the first time that the championship has been out of the Red and Blue school for three years. "Stan" Johnson, captain; Girard Thompson; George McInerny; and Ronald Stewart were the mainstays of the Red and Blue squad throughout the season and this foursome kept its average down close to the low score of 300.

In September, 1925, when Coach Arthur V. Storm called for candidates for his team he found that a few veterans were missing through graduation. Stewart, Johnson, and Thompson received their diplomas in June; and McInerny, John Falconer, and Bill Kerrish were the only veterans available. However, Coach Storm decided upon a tournament as a means of deciding who the other members of the squad should be. "Stan" Opstad and Cramer Lyons survived the tournament and proved themselves to be good valuable men on the fall team.

Lyons, who had been elected captain, led his teammates through a somewhat uneven season. The squad won two of the five matches played, defeating Roosevelt and South, and falling before Marshall, West, and North. This second gave them a mediocre place in the final standings.

McInerny's graduation in January left Captain Lyons, Opstad, and Falconer as veterans for this spring's team.



TENNIS REVIEW

THE tennis squad which represented Central during the spring of 1925 and the fall of the same year won considerable distinction as a team of formidable racquet wielders througout the city and Northwest. The squad worked through the spring season without a single defeat, beating North in the final match 5 to 0 for the city title. In this match Ralph Gale, Anders Orfield, Donald Craigie, and Willard Naslund were the stars, both in the singles and the doubles.

At the June exercises three of this quartet were graduated, Gale, Orfield, and Craigie, leaving Naslund as the nucleus for the fall squad. Lorenz Pendleton and Bob Carney, two other members of the fall team, were the other veterans to proceed on the fall squad.

Coach A. E. Buresh decided on a tournament from which he should pick the winners to fill out the rest of his late season team. Bronson Woodworth was the winner of the tournament, eliminating 52 other entrants for the contest title and getting the fourth position on the team.

The fall squad under the captaincy of Bob Carney, although weakened by graduation, led the field until the three final meets which they dropped to Edison, South, and North. The same squad was all back for spring play and three of the players will continue next fall and spring to represent the Red and Blue in this sport.

GIRLS' TENNIS

THE girls' tennis team won for Central High the city championship which brought into their possession the Josten Trophy Cup. The team was composed of Elinor Mann, Lillian Gillilland, and Katherine Duffy; the fall champion, spring champion, and runnerup respectively. In spite of the fact that Katherine was defeated in the earlier part of the final tournament, Elinor and Lillian together won for the school the city title by defeating all of their opponents. This, moreover, made both girls eligible to compete for the individual city championship. The fact that two girls of the same team competed for this title was unique in the history of girls' interscholastic tennis. Elinor defeated Lillian 6-3, 7-5, which crowned her the city tennis queen.

In the Central High spring tournament of 1925, Elinor and Lillian were the survivors, and met each other in one of the most exciting matches in years. The close score of 4-6, 7-5, 11-9 tells the story of the match when Elinor defeated Lillian. Both girls were about evenly matched, but Elinor had an edge over Lillian because of a little better endurance and better pickup.

The 1925 fall championship was won by Vivian Haines. She defeated Lillian in an undisputed match, the score being 6-4, 4-6, 6-2.

GIRLS' INDOOR TRACK

UNDER the captaincy of Lillian Gillilland, the junior track team won the interclass indoor track championship with a total of 36 points. The seniors placed a close second with 23 points, the sophomores ranked third with 15½ points, and the freshmen trailed in with 6½ points.

The juniors had on their team two of Central's greatest athletes, Lillian Gillilland and Dorothy Davies. These girls shared the laurels for individual high point winners, each having won three first places. Lillian won first place in the running broad jump with a leap of 13 feet 9 inches. In the high jump, leaping 4 feet 5 inches, she took an undisputed first. Not satisfied with two first positions she captured another in the running hop, step, and jump, making 30 feet 1 inch. To Dorothy Davies goes the city championship in the standing broad jump. She leaped 7 feet 11 inches. Dorothy also won first place in the 50 yard dash, coming within one second of the city record. Her time was 6 1-10 seconds. She also captured a first in the 50 yard hurdles, negotiating the distance in 7 2-10 seconds. The other honors went to Crystal Nelson who won second place in the basketball throw, and Portia Weeks, who placed second in the shot put event. Rose Dale was the only girl to earn a first place for the senior team. Rose had been for the last two years, the school record holder in the shot put. She put the shot 30 feet 2 inches. Ethel Harrington was high point girl, having a total of six points. Eleanor Mann tied with Francis Hanson, a sophomore, for second place in the hop, step, and jump, and also tied with Marian Caldwell, a sophomore, for second place in the high jump. Vera Rashke won a third place in the basketball throw, while Margaret Donnelly took second in the 50 yard hurdles.

GIRLS' VOLLEYBALL

LOSING only one match, the frosh volleyball team proved itself the victor in the interclass volleyball tournament.

The sophomore team, captained by Marion Caldwell, the only team to defeat the clever frosh opponents, tied the juniors for second place for the interclass championship. Adeline Kerrigan led the junior team. The seniors under the captaincy of Dora Anderson took an ignominious third place. The freshmen's victory was a total surprise to the overconfident upperclass teams, because it has been many years since a freshman team has held the title.

The second junior team, champions of the second tournament, confident of a victory over the champs, challenged them to a match in defense of their title. The freshmen, determined to keep their slate clean, played the match with great skill, defeating their challengers 15-6 and 15-3. Ruth Gale was captain of the juniors' second team.

Florence Wiggins, captain of the champions, was unusually successful in winning the cooperation of her teams, and in bringing out the best efforts of every player. The team work was consistent and outstanding throughout the entire season; and if the members continue with their practice and training, they will stand an excellent chance for the championship during the next three years. The team was composed of Florence Wiggins, captain, Eleanor Thelander, Frances Hanson, Berda Wekseth, Evelyn Barry, Isabel Ruck, Lorain Buncker, Delores Duel, Yvonne Shaw, Ruth Carpenter, and Harriet Holmes.

SILVER LOVING CUP WINNERS

THE highest athletic award that any girl in the city can receive, is a silver loving cup. It is not only an award, but an honor for any girl to receive this merit. Besides earning one thousand Girls' Athletic Association points, the candidate must rank high in scholarship, character, and initiative, and must have given service to the school.

Eleanor Mann, Lillian Gillilland, Rose Dale, and Elizabeth Thomas, have been honored by receiving loving cups from Central.

Eleanor Mann has been very active in school activities. She was president of the Girls' Athletic Association for the 1924 spring quarter, which position made her a member of the Senior Council. In her graduating year, she was appointed girls' sport editor of the Centralian, and elected to the National Honor Society. She was also a member of the Library Board.

Lillian Gillilland, whose activities are of a different type, has certainly proved herself worthy of her award. She was a member of the school debate team and the National Honor Society. During her junior year she was elected president of the Girls' Athletic Association and thus became a member of the Senior Council.

Rose Dale was elected to the National Honor Society and was a member of the Girls' "C" Club. She was very active in the Latin Club and Girls' Club.

Although Elizabeth Thomas is only a junior she has made a wonderful showing all around. She is not only a member of the "C" Club, but a member of the Girls' Athletic Association Board and Girl Reserves. Elizabeth is a good scholar, and undoubtedly will be quite popular in her senior year. There have been only a few to win silver loving cups in their junior year.

Oh, frabjous day! Callooh !Callay!

CHARACTERS

Jack Braithwaite, a low wastrel villain	Jack Chambers
Nell Braithwaite, his daughter	Olive Walker
Wally, a soda squirt	Ernie Adamson
O'Rafferty, of the Force	Mike Nestor
Danny O'Rafferty, his son	Bill Thompson

"Heh—Heh, Heh!"

A coarse laugh echoed back and forth in the Rosebud Ice Cream Parlor. It was the laugh of the wastrel, Jack Braithwaite, as he ordered another nut sundae. It was Saturday night and a goodly crowd was there, drowning their sorrows in the variety of vile concoctions that Wallie, the soda-jerk was famous for. Braithwaite banked his empty dish on the bar and was about to rip out a scathing oath, when a little, golden-haired lassie came in and with tearful eyes walked over to the blustering individual.

"Daddy—please come home," she sobbed, "Mother is ill."

"Give her some essence of Sloan," growled the brute angrily, and turned away.

"Wallie," he cried, "five fingers of pineapple malted milk."

The little girl turned sorrowful away and disappeared into the night.

The evening wore on and was waxing right merry when suddenly in the doorway appeared little Nell a second time.

"Please—please," the little gal sobbed again, "Mother's dying."

"Let 'er die," and with a muttered oath he turned his back on her and ordered a Coca Cola.

"But, Daddy, there are two men who have broken in and are stealing our supply of 'O'Henry!s'."

With a horrible shriek the man leaped across the room and out into the black night.

It is midnight and the wind is howling (wind off stage). A dim streetlamp flickers now and then as the wind sweeps through the night, now it glimmers and now goes out.

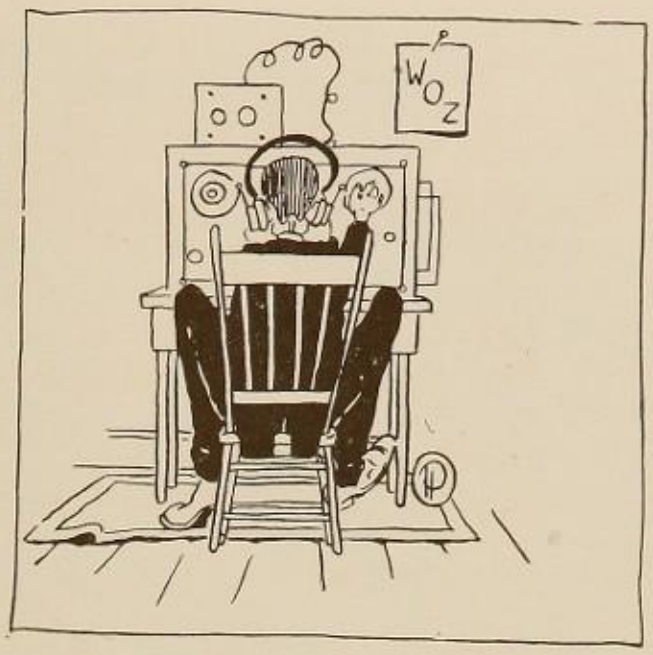
An empty cab swings round the corner and slithers down the icy street (slithering, off stage).

O'Rafferty, of the force, steps out into the night from his cozy cottage and shifting his night stick to his left arm he waves good-bye to his son Danny in the lighted window.

One Hour Later

"Zung." The clock in the steeple strikes one.

O'Rafferty, of the force, was turning from Gorgan's grocery to retrace his steps to the bridge, hanging like a heavy, shadowy bar across the black waters of the river. Half the lights are out now. The icy wind howls.



What is that? A shadow near the railing of the bridge. Ah! It is a girl in black, head bowed, clasping a tiny bundle to her breast. The wind whips her cloak about her and lashes her face in sullen fury. But still she braves the buffeting wind and struggles on, clutching the precious little thing tighter to her breast.

Oh! She stops at the middle of the bridge. Below yawns the hungry river, black as the raging Styx, 'neath the cruel midnight sky. Now she leans far out over the rail. Ach Looie! What's she doing? She draws the tiny bundle from beneath her coat and with a low hard laugh, she tosses it far out. It turns over and over as it plunges into the black maw of the swirling river.

Drawing her heavy coat about her face, she quickly disappears into the darkness.

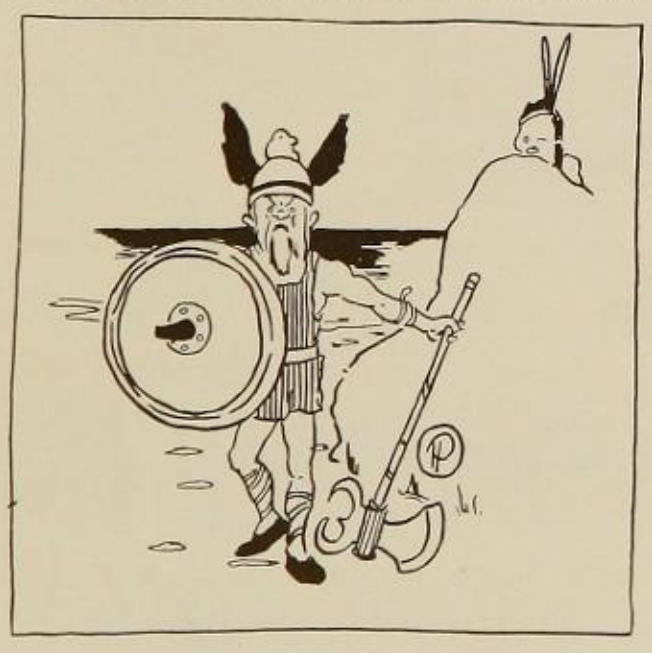
"Whoa! Watzis!" Officer O'Rafferty, of the force, dashes heroically from along the end of the bridge, poises an instant on the rail and then flings himself downward to the rescue. For on the side of the box he has seen the name "O'Henry!" and he craves his carbo-hydrates.

Waved the palms and winked the stars. The sand witched. The midnight blue canopy hung overhead dotted here and there with penpoints of light.

Nell Braithwaite, now grown to womanhood, was seated 'neath a palm tree strumming a ukulele.

Standing directly in back of our Nell was a tall, dark skinned Arab. He gazed at her silently. Little Nell turned and playfully threw a shovelful of sand in his eyes.

"Say, Bel Thazar, you low heathen, you have heard the latest song? 'Don't use the whip, McGonigle, it's a hired horse!' "



"No," came from his flashing glass eye. (Noise as of glass eye flashing.)

"By St. Bride of Bothwell, no! And I'm not a heathen." And doffing his fez, turban, chapeau, his curly blond locks blew out into the wind.

"You, Danny O'Rafferty?"

"Me, Nell Braithwaite!"

"Oh—No—Not you Danny O'Rafferty?"

"Ah—Yes—'Tis me, Nell Braithwaite!"

She flung herself into his outstretched arms.

Censored. (Noise, as of a wet sponge dropping off-stage.

Censored. Censored. Censored.

Waved the palms. Winked the stars.

The sand witched.

OUR SENIOR COUNCIL

THREE tall, white shrouded figures ushered me through a door into a dark room. Silence. Black darkness hung in the room like a shroud. Twenty ghostlike figures stood in the darkness peering at me as I came humbly in. It was the weekly meeting of the Senior Council and I had the honor of reporting. Finally all were seated and King Ku Kluxer Roundhead came forward to light a candle. It was so dark he had to light a second one to see if the first one was lit. At this point Kluxer Walker stepped to the fore and sang a little ditty entitled, "I wish't I was in Peoria." Lots of applause.

The King Kluxer now stood up and with a freezing glance around the assembly and kicking Westmoreland in the shins, he shouted:

"Any old business?"

No answer.

He sank back in his chair, a broken man.

But love triumphed and finally clutching at his throat he oscillates his bronchial tubes to the effect that—

"Any new business?"

And in unison they came back threatening:

"We craves our rights we does, and we craves a luncheon, we does, and what's more we move to them effects, we does."

And King Kluxer Roundhead ups an' pipes back at 'em with this:

"I'll O. K. that! We'll have a luncheon." (Triumphant nods by the rest of the Terrible Thirty.)

Then to my amazement, "Sis" Kluxer Fleming gets up and starts telling a funny story—telling a story anyway. I gently nudged Kluxer Rubrecht on my left and asked gently with a sob in my throat:

"What's the big idea?"

"Say," he reincarcerates, "You haven't the brains to get a decent headache. The bunch is stalling for time, so we won't have to go back to class. The one who is talking when the bell rings, gets the prize.

Breathlessly, I waited for the bell and when Kluxer Martin was telling a new one about "some Boy shooting himself in the backyard and telling his children Santa Claus had committed suicide or something," the bells rang out in carols gay. He strode neatly to the front and was presented with two wads of slightly used gum.

WISE CRAX OF THE LITTLE FOLK

About once a month, Grandfather comes over to visit us, and on this occasion always takes the gardener's little daughter Elaine, a cunning little tot of seventy odd years, on his knee and tells her a story. On his last visit he wore a bright green cap (fancy, a man of his years), and when it came time for Elaine's story he set her on his knee and gave her the cap to hold. He then proceeded to tell her the story of "Little Red Ridinghood." When he had finished, she sat there silent for a moment looking at his cap. Noticing this, he asked:

"Did you like that story, my little gel?"

She sat there in silence for a moment and then pointed to his green cap, she laughingly replied with a sob in her throat:

"Yes."

P. S. The green cap had nothing to do with the story.

Little Ollie, age forty-nine, was walking through the park one day with his mother, drinking in all the beauties of nature. Among those drunk were: the twittering of birds, scudding clouds, Fords running hither and yon, and billboards advertising Camel cigarettes.

Little Ollie tired at length and they chanced upon a stone bench in a secluded spot. They had no more than seated themselves when a little squirrel clinging to a branch above them began pelting them with acorns. Little Ollie bore up under this humiliation for four or five days, but finally his temper got the better of him and turning sharply he laughed a lucid laugh and asked:

"Mama, what makes the grass so green?"

One day last week I was entertaining the Ladies' Aid with a bridge party and had been working hard to see that everyone felt at home and was enjoying the afternoon. Everything had passed beautifully and the women were preparing to leave. I was just bidding them goodbye, when all at once, through the upper chambers a blood-curdling scream rent the air. There was a bumping about, as of dead bodies, etc., and then all was silent. Almost immediately a quick succession of shots rang out and a door slammed on the balcony above our heads. Looking up we saw my six year old daughter, Twinkle, holding a smoking gun in her hand and blood pouring from a gash in her neck.

"Mother," she screamed, "What time will supper be ready?"

Under the spreading chestnut tree,
The village smithy lies;
While he was shoeing an army mule,
He forgot to shoe the flies.

W. Fawcett: "What does it say on the back of my paper, Mr. Dillan?"
Ing. (meekly): "Please write more legibly."

Ty Gleason: "I'm from Boston and I'm a bad bean."
L. Oliver: "Boy, you mess with me and you're going to be a has-been."

Lee McKee (contemplating a loan): "How are you fixed for money?"
Bill Edlund: "Oh, I have enough for tonight, thanks just the same."

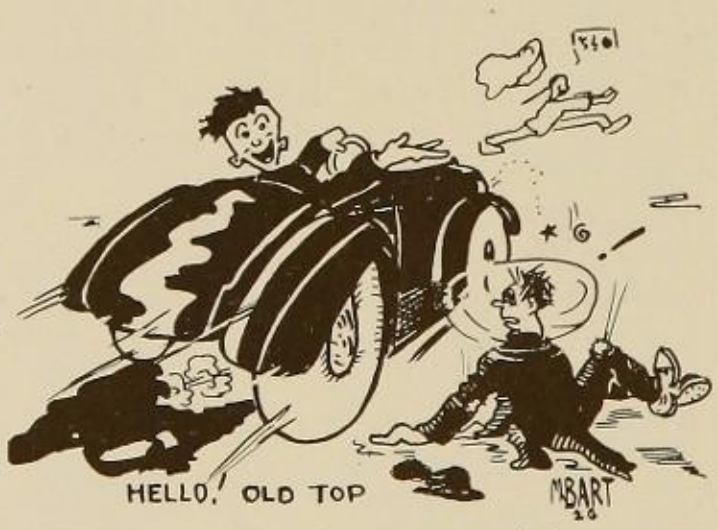
W. Barger: "I told my girl just what I thought of her the other night."
P. Rehl: "Yeh, what did she say?"
W. Barger: "I love you, too."



He always had a pleasant word for everyone with whom he came in contact.

* * *

E. Helgeson: "What were you doing in that accident down the road?"
K. Rubrecht: "Oh, just scraping up an acquaintance."

Cavanagh: "What a nice hand you have."
Dahl: "Like it? I'm sort of attached to it myself."

ESSAY a la K. C. B.

Yesterday I was on

Duty at my switchboard
* * *
And a long distance
* * *
Call came through from
* * *
A man to his
Son at college.
* * *
From the conversation I
* * *
Learned that the boy's
* * *
Marks had fallen a
Bit low, and Pater
* * *
Was wondering, "How come?"
* * *
"Hello, John, why didn't
* * *
You make better grades?"
* * *
There was silence for a
* * *
Moment and then came
* * *
Faintly from the other
End of the wire,
* * *
"Can't hear you father."
* * *
"I say, can't you
* * *
Make better grades?"
* * *
And there was silence
* * *
Again for a moment
* * *
Then came, "I'm sorry
* * *
Dad but I can't
* * *
Make out what you're saying."
* * *
And then there was
* * *
Silence again for a moment.
* * *
Then, "I say, John,
* * *
Do you need any money?"
* * *
And there wasn't any
* * *
Silence or hesitation at all.
* * *
"Why yes, Dad, please
* * *
Wire me about fifty
* * *
Dollars, immediately."
* * *
And so I broke
* * *
The connection.
* * *
I thank you.

There's sport in wearing

Macajacs
